McCALL AGAIN.

It is with extreme pleasure that we are enabled to announce in these columns the re-nomination of Hon. Samuel W. McColl to represent the 8th Congressional District of this State in the National House, where he has been a shining light for so many years.

It was with still greater pleasure that we discovered in his speech of acceptance of the honor indications of a mellowing and reform in his political opinions and attitude towards the Republican organization and its principles. Signs were not absent in that speech of an early switching around by our able and esteemed Congressman into the ranks of the old party, of which he used to be the central and most brilliant figure.

Representative McColl is one of the strongest men intellectually in Congress; he is honest, and true to his convictions; he possesses all of the elements of a great political leader; and if he would only work himself back into the Republican household, as he seems now to be trying to do, it would not be long before he would take a seat by the side of the Massachusetts Legislature, in the upper branch of the Nation's Legislature.

In addition to which, Congressman McColl "is a mighty good fellow."

STATE CONVENTION.

The Republicans of Massachusetts held a convention in Tremont Temple, Boston, last Friday, Oct. 5, for the purpose of nominating candidates for State offices, building a platform, and transacting such other business as might properly come before the meeting. The party was well represented by delegates from all over the Commonwealth, and the leaders were present in full force.

Curtis Guild, Jr., for Governor, and Eben S. Draper, for Lieutenant Governor, with all the other candidates, were nominated by acclamation, thus proving a party unity and harmony never surpassed in its history. This highly commendable spirit presaged an overwhelming majority for the ticket at the polls in November.

After the convention was over the delegates, Senator Lodge, Governor Guild and Eugene Foss declared emphatically that they were delighted with the tariff plank of the platform, therefore, it is argued, it must be a sound one.

Now, let us all take off our coats and go to work to elect the ticket.

COMPLIMENTARY.

Mr. Riley has served, with credit, in the lower branch of the Legislature, and his selection [for Senator from the 6th District] is an admirable one in every respect. — Winchester Star.

And the Winchester delegation did the handsome thing by sticking to Mr. Riley all through the convention, a favor which will be reciprocated by Woburn in due season.

Mr. Riley will make a good Senator, and prove a credit to himself and the District.

FOR REPRESENTATIVES

At the Republican Representative convention held in this city last week Andrew R. Lincoln of Woburn, and George A. Shackford of Reading, were unanimously nominated candidates to represent the 20th Middlesex District in the next Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Their election will follow next month as a matter of course. The candidacy of these estimable gentlemen will be discussed more at length in the JOURNAL's columns later on.

If the Boston newspapers tell reliable stories about the Democratic situation in this State there is danger that Moran's campaign is speedily to end in an exhibition of dissolving views. The latest reports put it that Moran had not accepted the Democratic nomination for Governor; that no steps had been taken for a ratification meeting of the ticket; that there was no money to run a campaign on; that there were several serious bitches all along the line. Because John H. Feeney, who has paid the expenses of the campaign out of his own pocket so far, thinks he has done about as much as he can in this direction, Moran went to New York early this week to see Hearst, the Democratic nominee for Governor of New York, and aspirant for the Presidency, and try to induce him to furnish money to pull the Massachusetts Democracy through this fall. And, besides all that, the health of the Chief and his Cabinet is nothing to brag of.

A Chapter of D. A. R. is being organized in this city.

Miss Lillian Beasley is to be soloist at the Unitarian church next Sunday.

Rev. Ernest Bartlett formerly of Woburn but now pastor of John Chambers Memorial Church, Philadelphia, spent Sunday in this city.

Mrs. Susan J. Ordway, 70 years old, suffered a shock of paralysis at her home, 18 High street, last Saturday forenoon.

—One of the Democratic candidates for Representative in this District is a Prohibitionist. Politics makes strange bedfellows.

—Mrs. Minnie Nichols of North Weare, N. H., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Simonds, on Church avenue.

—W. R. C. 161, will give an entertainment in 161 G. A. R. hall Monday evening, Oct. 29. Among other features will be a "Trip to the Rainbow."

—The mother of Police Officer Austin G. French died at her home in Kalamazoo, Michigan, last week, aged 84 years. She formerly lived in this city.

—We had a fine nice rain last Saturday evening, which doubtless helped along Ald. B. H. Nichols's squashes, which, he says, are still growing.

—Several of our more noted gunners are in the Maine forests this week slaying deer, possibly. There are more hunters in Maine this year than ever before.

—The centre of real estate trade appears to be in Ward 6. More residence property is sold at No. Woburn than in any other section of the city, so it is said.

—E. Prior may be found at 349 Main street, Woburn, prepared to sell Real Estate of all descriptions—all at Auction and does a general Fire Insurance business.

—Twenty-three people from the First Baptist church attended the annual meeting of the Boston East Baptist Association held at the Baptist church in Stoneham, Wednesday, Oct. 10.

—John W. Johnson, Esq., President of the Woburn National Bank, is a member of Mayor Linscott's hunting party down in Maine. He and his companions are to return next week.

—We learn from a copy of the Worcester Magazine that Mr. Winthrop Hammond, a prominent merchant of that city and Woburn, is a Director in the Worcester Board of Trade.

—Note carefully changes in the new fall timetable of the Boston & Maine Railroad of arrivals and departures of trains at the Woburn station carefully prepared by Clerk McDonald.

—The ladies of the M. E. church are to hold a grand Fair on Oct. 24, 25, for which extensive preparations are being made. The Journal will publish a list of committee Chairmen next week.

—During several nights last week the fog ("colder" dir) was so thick that one could hang his hat on it—not a perfect, or, perhaps, a pardonable, simile to use in this case. But it was the thickest ever.

—Rev. Stephen D. Norton, D. D., pastor of First church, and wife, and Mr. Luke Warren Fowle and daughter Angie, left here last Tuesday for No. Adams and Williamstown to attend the celebration of the "Haystack" centennial.

—Mayor and Mayoress Arthur H. Linscott and Dr. Robert Chalmers constitute a hunting party now roaming the forests of Maine for the slaughter of deer and moose. That they are having a great time goes without saying to use a phrase of ancient origin and chestnut variety.

—The other day Mrs. H. Josephine Howard, spouse of our gentlemanly and efficient Water Commissioner, was applied to for lecturing terms by the committee of a New Jersey literary society, showing that the lady has a good reputation abroad, as well as at home, as a platform orator.

—Dr. S. W. Kelley suffered quite a severe attack of the prevailing stomach troubles last week, but acting on the command, "Physician, heal thyself," and getting Dr. J. P. Birky to help him, he came out last Tuesday morning in good working trim, and resumed practice to the gratification of his hosts of friends.

—In another column we publish the Burben Free Lecture Fund program for this season's course of lectures. A prime list of talent has been secured by the Trustees, and each lecturer, no doubt, will be honored by large audiences, as has been the case each year since the founding of the Fund by the late Leonard Thompson.

—It was great! meaning the bouquet of dahlia presented to us by Mrs. C. M. Strout the other evening. The magnificent bouquet that came from it for our delight the other day.

—St. Charles C. T. A. S. participated in the great temperance parade and Father Mathew celebration at Woburn last Wednesday. They left about noon accompanied by the Woburn Brass Band. As it was the anniversary of the birthday of Father Mathew, the great temperance apostle, preparations were made for a notable occasion.

—The heaviest thunder storm of the season occurred last Tuesday evening. Oceans of rain fell, the lightning was never more vivid, and thunder rolled heavily for two hours. The street lights were thrown out of commission by the lightning, darkness prevailed and the streets were flooded. Rain continued to pour all night. The storm was still more severe and damaging in Boston.

—A large number of people assembled at the home on Sedgwick Park last Friday afternoon to attend the funeral of the late Charles K. Conn. Rev. Dr. March made a short address in which he warmly eulogized the deceased, and the Veterans of the Civil War, many of whom were present. Mr. Tripp had charge of the funeral. The casket was covered with flowers from many friends.

—A decided improvement in the quality of horseflesh used on the city's watering carts, effected by some body quite recently, would seem to indicate that the shaft from the bow of the JOURNAL's valued correspondent on the subject struck a vulnerable spot in the official armor of someone at City Hall. "The Press is the Archimedean lever that moves the world"—the 7th mechanical power, so to speak.

—Mrs. Dr. Graves is at home from a protracted visit in California.

—Aspirants for Mayoralty nominations are springing up all along the line.

—Please read "To Let," an interesting squib by Mr. Daniel H. Richards.

—Read carefully the programme of the Trustees for this season's course of Burben lectures.

—The South End Social Club will hold on the next previous Tuesday, Oct. 11, the 38th annual concert and ball Friday evening, Nov. 2, at Lyceum Hall.

—According to the calculations of almanac makers Indian Summer opened up for a limited season's performance last Tuesday.

—Hon. John M. Harlow had an ill turn a few days ago, but we are happy to be able to state that "Richard is himself again."

—Religious services, conducted by Rev. H. C. Parker, will be held in the Home for Aged Women at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

—The S. of V. and Club held their annual concert and ball at Lyceum Hall last Wednesday night. It was largely attended and a fine social affair.

—Work is progressing on the long looked for Library playground, and it is earnestly hoped that when finished it will not be neglected, but will be kept in good condition for use.

—The much talked of Butterfly Ball to be given by the Independent Maids, will be held tonight in Lyceum Hall. Over seven hundred invitations were given out, and it promises to be one of the most successful events of the season.

—Ah? Then it is true that our esteemed friend, Winfield R. Long, Esq., has received the Democratic nomination for Representative? Of course, no Democratic nominee stands the ghost of a chance of being elected in this District.

—Mr. and Mrs. Warren Chase and Mr. George Nichols are to arrive from New Hampshire tomorrow to visit a week with Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Simonds on Church avenue, where Mrs. Nichols has been, with her parents, for nearly a week.

—Last Sunday Mr. William W. Crosby played cornet solos at Mr. Clarke's music hall on Woburn Reading line; Mrs. Lewis and son played piano duets; and Mr. Lewis gave organ selections. It was the last of the series of the Clarke informal artistic Sunday afternoon musicales.

—Rev. Geo. A. Gates, D. D., President of Pomona College, California, who preaches the annual sermon at the American Board meeting this week, will spend Sunday in Woburn with Dr. Norton and will preach in the morning at the First church. Dr. Gates is recognized as one of the strong men of the denomination and the country. He was invited to the Presidency of Dartmouth college before going to Pomona.

—Miss Helen Isabel Deland, the piano teacher of this city, attended the Worcester musical festival last week.

—This annual assembly of noted vocalists at the "Heart of the Commonwealth" occupies, with pride, a high rank in the estimation of the musical stars, and, indeed, among all grades of singers and lovers of melody, in New England. It is, to speak plainly, the musical event of the year in the Old Bay State.

—Some of the old elms about town are dropping their faded leaves to the ground, but the most of them still retain their summer foliage, and many a variety of flowers bloom brilliantly, although frosts will soon rob them of the beauty they now glory in. The falling of the leaves reminds us that winter is close at hand; but that should not be a melancholy contemplation, for winter has many joys in store that even the more genial seasons fail to furnish.

—At a recent meeting of Co. G, 5th Regiment, the following civil officers were elected. The annual holiday and banquet of the Company is being planned to take place at an early date: Treasurer, S. W. A. Smith; Armory Committee, Sergt. C. F. Bowers, Cor. W. E. Brauer, Priv. R. J. Bostead, Priv. F. H. Keen; Membership Committee, Sergt. J. E. Graham, Corp. C. W. Sweeney; George Durward, Priv. W. E. Mead; Finance Committee, Sergt. F. H. Graham, Corp. P. J. Shea, Priv. F. J. Shannon.

—JOURNAL office thanks are due to its good friend Mr. A. C. Floyd of the U. S. Treasury Department at Washington for a copy of the Annual Report of the Register of the Treasury for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, which thanks are hereby extended. The Report makes splendid insight into a stormy October evening, for it is soothing and tends to comelody on the part of reader, if, perchance, he refrains from sarcasm, while studying its valuable contents, especially its delightfully arranged tables of figures.

—Capt. Jacob M. Ellis, an old and respected resident of Woburn, a Veteran of the Civil War, and well known general contractor, returned, a few days ago, from a highly enjoyed campaign of three weeks down in the famous big game section of Maine. Capt. Ellis is a native of the Pine Tree State and, although many years have elapsed since leaving his home there, he still cherishes a warm spot in his heart for the place of his birth and boyhood, and occasionally visits Down East with pleasure. He returned in perfect health and the possession of a full flow of spirits.

—Mr. Charles A. Jones, President of the Five Cents Savings Bank, is in Northern N. H. enjoying his annual autumnal outing. The fact that this is the open season for plover, woodcock, partridges, grouse, etc. in that State may, or may not, account for his taking a gun and powderhorn along with him, although it cannot be wickered out of sight that he dearly loves a hunt for gamebirds, and is wonderfully handy with a London doublebarrel stub-and-twist. It is never safe to prognosticate his return from a successful shooting trip among the Granite Hills or anywhere else.

—A party of Woburn people had the pleasure of walking from Stoneham home last Monday night or Tuesday morning. They had been to a dance at Easley's Hall, Wakefield, and the special car which was to run to Woburn failed to appear. They reached Stoneham on a car, but had to foot it the rest of the way.

—Milton Moore feels very grand because the city has finally concluded to put down a concrete sidewalk in front of his house on Burlington street. Nichols's Corner is coming up. For example, Frank C. Nichols, the ice merchant, has engaged the Edison Co. to put electric lamps into his residence, 13 Burlington street. See what ice can do!

—Mr. Fred O. West, son of Mr. George W. West of Plymouth street, this city, has recently won a scholarship in the Harvard Medical School, where he has been a student during the last two years, which entitles him to free instruction for the balance of his term. This is indeed a feather in the young gentleman's cap, of which he and his friends have a right to feel proud.

—At Trinity church on Thursday evening, Oct. 18, at 8 o'clock, will occur the fall meeting of the Sunday School Union of the North Suburban District.

—This includes the nine neighborhood Episcopal parishes. The public are cordially invited, especially all Sunday School teachers of whatever denomination. The program will consist of a short opening service, a short business session, after which the subject for discussion: "Teacher Training" will be opened by Rev. Arthur P. Greenleaf of Dorchester, to be followed by a general discussion. The program will close with a social hour at the Parish House for delegates and invited guests.

—Water metre experts held a session at the Council meeting last Monday evening, the principal speaker being Mr. Charles W. Gilbert of this city, who has been studying the subject of metres for several years past, and is posted. All the orators favored water metres. We were not aware that anybody possessing a modicum of horse sense was ready to deny that the distribution of water by metres is the only fair way of doing it. A school-board could have told the Council this with both eyes closed; but it seems the City Fathers wanted expert opinions. It is extremely doubtful, however, if the present is just the right time to introduce the system in this city.

—Woburn fared very well in the distribution of 1906 prizes by the Boston & Maine Railroad Co. for the finest station flowerbeds on their many lines. It has been their practice to distribute annually these prizes, which has had a good effect on the keepers of station grounds, and increased the attractiveness of the buildings and lawns. The Superintendent of this branch of the Co.'s work has just made his awards, and included in them are William J. Murray of the Montvale station, $20; Ois S. Blanchard, Central Square; Philip O'Brien, North Woburn, $5 each. Mr. James H. Callahan would have beaten them all had he not been sick just at the wrong time for the good of his beds.

—The following persons have been appointed teachers in the evening school, which is to open, under the supervision of the Evening School Council, on Monday night, Oct. 15: Elementary Studies, Misses Catherine Larkin and Anne Scallan; Greek class, Theodore A. Govostes, Miss Ellen L. Watts; Drawing, Harry H. West; Bookkeeping, Miss Ada Munroe and Miss Elizabeth Caulfield; Stenography, Miss Mary R. Walsh, Alice J. Murray, Marie F. Fournier. It is hoped that the attendance of pupils will exceed that of any former year, and that the classes will be kept intact during the entire session. The evil of a large entry and decreasing attendance from the start should, if possible, be put a stop to by the Committee. The school is of too much importance to have its usefulness frittered away by the indifference and freckishness of parents and students.

—The last issue of Youth's Companion, Boston, a publication devoted, especially, to the instruction and entertainment of youth, contained a short story, a favorite form of narrative employed by that paper, from the pen of Mr. George S. Hudson, district reporter for the Boston Herald, whose place of residence is in the fashionable quarter of town Winchester, with republican headquarters in this city.

The story is entitled "A Point Rip Pilot." It emits a nautical odor of decided pungency; and is such a yarn as a far favorite form of narrative employed by that paper, from the pen of Mr. George S. Hudson, district reporter for the Boston Herald, whose place of residence is in the fashionable quarter of town Winchester, with republican headquarters in this city.

On July 8, 1881, the Woburn JOURNAL contained a story of the centennial celebration of the organization of the First Baptist church of this city, which was held on the next previous Tuesday, July 5, 1881, and, also, the historical sermon preached on that jubilee occasion by Rev. E. Mills, its then pastor. The celebration was a memorable one, marking 100 years of active, progressive, and useful existence, and, although coming in an unfavorable season of the year when the people were leaving on their other town excursions near and remote. The religious, literary and social exercises were interesting, entertaining, and highly enjoyed.

Immediately after the publication of Rev. Mr. Mills's sermon there arose in the First Baptist church of Woburn the oldest in this part of the State, the celebration of the jubilee of the West Cambridge (Arlington) church was entitled to that honor. Quite a good sized, and very happy, aged for some weeks, but Rev. Samuel Cook of the Woburn church stepped into the arena and very quickly straightened the matter out. The simple fact was: the church was founded at West Cambridge in 1781, composed of Woburn and West Cambridge people, and a parish incorporated, at a certain date thereafter, the Woburn membership greatly exceeding the membership of the parent town, the church, as a church, with its records and machinery was transferred, as a whole, to Woburn, while the parish corporation, and things thereto belonging, remained at West Cambridge. The storm blew over, the dove came, and peace, and the controversy was abandoned, and harmony between the churches of the two places has reigned ever since.

Under the administration of able and devoted pastors, prominent among whom should be numbered Rev. H. B. Williams, D. D., present shepherd of the flock, and Rev. Dr. Crane, his predecessor, the First Baptist church of Woburn has made history during the last 25 years. Its improvement, during its centennial celebration in 1881 and its 125th anniversary last Sunday and Monday, was a full story of the church's growth in strength of its auxiliary organizations, in capacity to widen and extend its charities, and it is to be hoped, in the Christian graces. The society's first meetinghouse in Woburn was erected in 1821 at the corner of Main and Church streets. In 1827 it was decided to build another, and in May, 1828, the new edifice, costing $8,000, including site, was dedicated, free of debt, on the spot now occupied by the present building. Its tower, made in 1833 and 1863, and 30 years ago the house appeared in its present form, and it was enjoyed. It has been pronounced by competent judges to approach nearer perfect architectural proportions than any other in this part of the State, and has been adopted as a model by numerous churches. It is said to have been designed by an old sea captain, skilled in its construction, and with a fine conception of architectural proportion, beauty and grace. The story was recently told as the story concerning the designing of the tower. Recently, in response to an invitation to attend the celebration, Mrs. Edmond of Newton, 80 years old, a former resident of Woburn, who had been a member of the church, wrote to the invitation committee that her interest in the old church was still deep and abiding, and especially so, as her father, Samuel Abbott, was the

VENERABLE, BUT SPRIGHTLY

On October 18, 1851, or 55 years ago yesterday, John A. Fowle and Brother issued the first number of THE WOBURN JOURNAL, and there has not been a week since that date that it has failed to put in an appearance to enlighten the understanding and cheer the hearts of its readers. The paper has experienced but comparatively few changes in proprietorship—only one in the last 36 years, the present owner having been at the helm a little more than 26 of them.

We verily believe that there are names of more people over 75 years old on our subscription list than that of any other paper in Middlesex county, and it is only on the death of a patron that a name ever drops from it; in fact, the JOURNAL makes a specialty of old people.

The JOURNAL's chief patronage has always come from the ranks of the educated and refined and its present ambition is to maintain a standard of excellence that will secure a continuance of the same desirable class of patrons.

A BAD YEAR.

This is a bad year for America. It is a bad year for political affairs. It is a bad year to hold the door open for tariff changes. It is certainly a bad year to withhold hearty support from the Republican party, that has created all the wonderful prosperity that workingmen enjoy—and that is the opinion, too, of the great majority of workingmen, who will vote for Republican Tariff Protection, as they always do.

The truth of which the voters of Massachusetts will prove at the polls on Nov. 6 next. Never in the history of the country were the times so good and people so prosperous as now, and being intelligent and satisfied they will not be likely to cast their ballots for a change. Were it not for the influence of demagogic leaders, like Gompers and others, who think they must earn their salaries, not a breath of complaint would be heard coming from labor circles in these prosperous times.

DISCHARGED.

Last Monday evening John B. Moran, nominated by three political parties for Governor, and still Prosecuting Attorney for Suffolk county, discharged the members of his campaign committee, Messrs. John P. Feeney, Granville S. McFarland and Alonzo D. Moran, and told them that their services were no longer wanted by him, as he proposed to run his own campaign. It was a blow to the Committee; they were overwhelmed with surprise. But Feeney holds the cudgel, for he is chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

What Moran's next step will be no mortal man can guess.

RILEY.

The newspapers in this Senatorial District are earnestly advocating the election of Herbert S. Riley, Esq., to the Senate, and saying good things about him; all of which he deserves. A better candidate to represent this District in the upper branch of the Legislature could not have been selected by the Republicans. He is an upright, every particular, and will be elected next month by a big majority.

Mr. J. B. Lewis, the Democratic candidate for Representative from this District, is hotly fighting against the election of Representative Shackford, who has been nominated by the Republicans for a second term in the Legislature, and professes to have considerable hope of beating him. He has gathered up and set forth in order of dates Mr. Shackford's record on all matters touching temperance acted on by the present House, and draws from it the conclusion that he is not the right sort of a man to represent this District in the General Court. Mr. Lewis is prosecuting his canvass in dead earnest, and unless the Republicans keep their eyes peeled he may make trouble for our candidate.

Just why organized labor in this State should pick out Lieut. Governor S. Draper as an especial target for their onslaughts is a question hard to answer. His employees out at Hopdale think he is a pretty good friend of workmen, and why some of the Unions should be down on and pass resolutions against him is something the common run of people don't understand. But the labor agitators can't defeat his election, or prevent his getting a majority next November twice as large as last year.

At the evening, and final, session of the First Baptist 125th anniversary celebration, Rev. Dr. Williams announced that he had just declined a call to become pastor of another church, and gave reasons for it that drew credit to his head and heart. His church have become warmly attached to him, a feeling that he heartily reciprocates, and he is popular with all classes in this community. Dr. Williams is an able preacher of the gospel and a faithful pastor.

We have scanned, with extreme care, and considerable interest, the columns of our esteemed contemporary, the Reading Chronicle, for words of commendation of Representative Shackford, but alas, our search has been in vain. They are fellow citizens and if one was looking for praise the Representative his eye would naturally be directed to the columns of his home paper; but we fail to find it there.

Those people who are curious to see a phenomenal vote should take notice of that which Mr. Andrew R. Lincoln, Republican candidate for the Legislature from this District, will receive on election day. He is sure to head the list, for there isn't a more popular man in the city, and besides a full Republican vote, many Democrats will cast their ballots for Roscoe Lincoln on Nov. 6. He will make a Representative whose course in the General Court will be creditable to the District.

At the close of his speech at Fitchburg last Wednesday evening John B. Moran collapsed again and had to be put to bed by his attendants. He seems to be all broken down physically, and it is doubtful if he will be able to make many speeches during the campaign.

True to his generous instincts, Mr. George Buchanan brought over to the domicile of the Editor, the other day, the handsome bouquet of the season. It wasn't the "last rose of summer left blooming alone" exactly, but a late, though brilliant, "survival of the fittest." Thanks.

Several months ago Miss Mabel E. Rosenquist, daughter of Mr. Chas. R. Rosenquist of 35 Green street, this city, sailed away for a tour of Sweden, her father's native land, Denmark and Norway, and returned to her home a few weeks ago delighted with all she had seen and heard while away.

On the opening of the Evening School last Monday 186 pupils registered—20 more than last year. The increase was in the elementary, mechanical drawing classes, and class of Greeks. Supt. Clapp was pleased with the general good quality of the students, and feels confident that the term will prove a profitable one.

It may not be generally known to the credit that the post-office authorities at Washington have held that reports of prize winners at eucure and whist parties will suffice, under the anti-lottery law, in excluding any newspaper from the mails. Woburn publishers will please take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.

The Mayoralty question is beginning to loom up on the horizon large. The present incumbent of the Executive chair will not be in the race, and already several names have been "mentioned" to take and fill his shoes.

The Democrats are to nominate Ald. James H. Connolly, but the Republican candidate is an unknown quantity.

Mr. James F. McGrath, the merchant, is seriously considered as a Democratic candidate for Mayor and it is said, is not averse to accepting the honor. It seems that the first choice of the Democrats was Mr. James Skinner, who would certainly tone up the party, but he absolutely refused to assume the office of campaign standard-bearer, and the wheelwheels were compelled to look elsewhere for a candidate.

A party of Woburn duck hunters are at Pine Point, with headquarters at Lookaway Inn, 3 miles N. E. of Old Orchard and 7 S. W. of the classic River Spurwink where it empties its pellicud waters into the sea, and in former days stood a popular hostelry famous for the delicious quality of its clams and strength of Medford r., and along this choice bit of oceanous mud ducks are expected to be bagged by them, and fat from eating succulent bivalves added to their ribs.

Henry D. Harrington was severely burned and overcome by smoke at a fire in his house on Broad street last Tuesday evening, where he lives alone. The fireman found him lying on the floor unconscious, with only his undershirt on, and his legs burning. He was speedily removed and placed under a Doctor's care. It was thought that, while undressing for bed, he tipped over the lamp which stood on a chair, set his shirt on fire, and was overcome by the smoke. He had a dose of calomel, and the fire was extinguished. The house was not greatly damaged.

P. S. Mr. Harrington died of his injuries at the Woburn Hospital on Wednesday, Oct. 17.

The date for the annual Firemen's Ball has been fixed for Wednesday evening, Oct. 24. It ought to, and no doubt will, be handsomely patronized by the public, for the Fire Department is one of the most important and deserving of any in our city government. The people owe a debt to the Firemen which they ought to be willing to pay, so far as they can, for it is a fact that the men who fight to save our homes and property from destruction are poorly compensated for their good work. Their forthcoming ball, we hear, is to be the best ever given by the Firemen.

In view of the disturbed condition of affairs in that Island the lecture that Mrs. H. Josephine Hayward is to give on Cuba next Thursday evening, Oct. 25, in K. of C. Hall under the auspices of Abajona Colony, U. O. P. F., will be opportune as well as more than ordinarily interesting. She gathered the material for her lecture "on the spot" while visiting the "Queen of the Antilles," the Hispaniola, or "Little Spain," of its Spanish discoverers, with her husband, Water Commissioner E. F. Hayward, a couple of years ago, and wrote into a production worthy of her genius and brilliant pen.

Edward S. Lyons was removed, on charges, by Mayor Lincoln from the Board of License Commissioners last June, and appealed his case to the Superior Court of this county. On last Monday he was notified by his Counsel that he had won, and was fully exonerated from the charges brought against him. This to him is a gratifying outcome of a case originating in anything but friendly feelings towards Commissioner Lyons, and which proved a boomerang to his accusers. As a basis for his verdict the Court must have found that he had discharged the duties of the office in an honest manner, and, we suppose, his reinstatement on the Board will follow the decision of the Court.

Latest dispatches received at City Hall gave the gratifying assurance that the Mayoralty hunting party in Maine would reach this city on Oct. 20, 1906.

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 24, the Woburn Firemen's Relief Association will give their annual ball and entertainment in Lyceum Hall. The entertainment will begin at 8, consisting of biograph and illustrated songs. A good entertainment is assured.

Please read C. E. Smith's notice "To Let" in this paper. He says the demand for houses here was never more brisk at this season of the year and a great many could be sold and rented if they were to be had. More are needed to meet applications, and Smith is hoping for an increase in the near future. He says the real estate outlook is good.

The funeral of Mrs. Harriet Sawtell, relict of the late Joseph B. Sawtell, who died at her home 7 Franklin street, this city, last Sunday evening, aged 82 years, was held on Tuesday, Oct. 16. The religious services were conducted by Rev. Henry C. Parker, pastor of the Unitarian church. A large number of the relatives, friends and neighbors of the deceased were present. Mr. Marcus H. Cotton sang appropriate pieces, and Rev. Mr. Parker spoke fitting words for the occasion. The casket was banked with flowers, the loving offerings of kind friends.

Miss Julia M. W. Ober has the agency and is canvassing this city for subscribers to a handsome book entitled "Thirty Years in Washington," the work of Mrs. General John A. Logan, widow of a famous Union General in the Civil War, and for many terms U. S. Senator from Illinois. The volume is splendidly illustrated with Washington scenes and people, and its contents, written by a lady resident of 30 years at the National Capitol, are intensely interesting. Miss Ober will canvass the city thoroughly and give everyone an opportunity to see the work and buy it.

Sitting on an old log in the woods, with genial sunbeams streaming down through the almost leafless branches of the trees, watching the squirrels gathering their winter stores of food, and dreaming, is a pastime that appeals strongly to the hearts of many, and is indulged in when favorable opportunities present themselves. Migratory flocks of feathered songsters have left their winter homes in the sunny South; the woods are silent, except for the fall of the nuts that the frosts have loosened from their stems, the faint hum of a belated bee, or a cricket's chirp in nearby scarlet leaves, and to sit on the old log of a mellow Indian Summer afternoon—and but the reader is left to finish the sentence according to his or her fancy.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Taylor of 23 Pleasant street celebrated the 13th anniversary of their wedding day last Tuesday, Oct. 16, by attending the Food Fair in Boston in the evening, mainly to hear Sousa's celebrated Band, of which Herbert Clarke, son of Organist Clarke of Clariford, is cornet soloist, and one of the most famous performers on that instrument in the United States. Herbert is, to all intents and purposes, a product of Woburn, and our people are all proud of him and the eminence he has reached in the musical world. He came honestly by his talents, for the old organist, the presiding genius of Clariford, is nothing more nor less than a big bunch of harmonious music chords, and sweet melody seems to flow from his very fingers, ends every time he sits down to his favorite instrument. The performances of Sousa's Band pleased Mr. and Mrs. Taylor very much indeed. Everybody is going to the Food Fair to hear Sousa's Band.

Last Tuesday Mrs. Charles H. Meury, State Regent, organized a chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution in this city with 43 charter members, and named it Loammi Baldwin Chapter, in honor of one of the most distinguished of Woburn Revolutionary Patriots, and officer in the 7 years War that "tried men's souls." Mrs. H. Josephine Hayward was chosen Regent; Mrs. George E. Winn, Vice Regent; Mrs. Ella J. Smith, Recording Secretary; Mrs. William Fox, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. J. F. Ramsdell, Treasurer; Mrs. William W. Hill, Historian; Mrs. Nellie T. Shaw, Registrar. Addresses were made by Mrs. Masury and Miss Marion H. Brazier, Assistant State Historian. Appropriately the Chapter was organized on "Apple Day," the annual observance of which is fixed for the third Tuesday of October, for Col. Loammi Baldwin, of Woburn, if not the discoverer of the Baldwin apple in Butters Row, acknowledged by all civilized nations to be "The King" of the fruit, cultivated and brought it to perfection and secured, in the end, its universal use. The Baldwin Chapter, D. A. R., starts out prosperously.

October 16 was "Apple Tuesday" all over our fair land. It was devoted to paying honor to the Apple, "The King of all the Fruits," to planting, grafting and trimming apple orchards; and in the schools instruction was given concerning the care of trees and raising the fruit. It originated at the Fruit Growers' Exhibit at the St. Louis Fair, and the 3d Tuesday of October was designated as the date on which "Apple Tuesday" was thereafter to be annually celebrated. Hundreds of apple growers and dealers from all over the Union assembled in Boston that day; they talked and ate apples; and at dinner menus at the hotels adopted apples as a basis. A large delegation of the apple men assembled in Boston Tuesday made a pilgrimage to Butters Row in Wilmington, just north of the Woburn line, to view the spot where the famous Baldwin Apple was discovered, and the granite monument, duly inscribed, which was erected on the spot a few years ago by the Ramford Historical Society of North Woburn, the venerable mansion at North Woburn of Col. Loammi Baldwin of Revolutionary fame, who, after its discovery, brought the Baldwin Apple—first called "Pecker Apple," but changed in honor of Col. B.—to perfection. The pilgrims partook of a feast of Baldwin Apples on the identical spot where that King of the Apple family was first found and brought into notoriety 113 years ago as a "Woburn Apple Tuesday" observed in Woburn.

City Council.

A meeting of the Council was held on the evening of Oct. 12, with President Blodgett in the chair, and three members absent.

Ald. J. H. Connolly's order for a municipal lighting plant, which has been under consideration several weeks, and for the passage of which Ald. C. has worked hard, failed to pass for a lack of the necessary two-thirds vote. The vote stood 6 to 6, and the order went over.

The Finance Committee reported in favor of a $4,000 appropriation, instead of $12,000 asked for, to be expended on the basement of the Armory, which was ordered to a second reading. It was ordered by the Finance Committee that the Mayor order a continuance of the work of exterminating the gypsy moths, in which the city and Supt. Kirkland have been so eminently successful in the past.

The following orders were accepted and adopted: Order for brick sidewalk on Broad street fronting the new telephone building; order for concrete sidewalk on Eaton Ave.; loan of $500 for sewer connection at new High school; loan of $500 to purchase ambulance.

16 Hours.

An extension of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co.'s power service has just been made that will be a great advantage to the steadily increasing number of customers in Woburn, Winchester and Stoneham. The power circuit will be on throughout every day from 6 in the morning until 10 at night. Heretofore, electricity for running motors and other machinery has been supplied at night only on request, but now the current will be immediately available for 16 hours a day, and if any one wishes it during the remaining six night hours it will only be necessary to notify the company by telephone—Oxford 1150, the current will be kept on without extra charge.

Castle Square Theatre.

For a third season under the management of the Boston Stage Society, the Castle Square Theatre has begun its new year most auspiciously. As the leading home theatre of Boston, it is the only playhouse in that city with a repertoire drawn from the best and most popular dramas of all ages, and the ability of its stock company, the perfection of its stage management, and the careful attention to all artistic details, is gradually bringing it to and securing for it the patronage of all theatre-goers. Although its productions are staged merely for a single week, they are put on with as great care and expense as if they were to run the season through, and more than one revival of a classic or standard drama has received the highest praise from competent and unbiased critics. As one of them has well said: "The productions at the Castle Square are unequalled; they would do credit to Irving, to Macbeth, to Mrs. Fiske, or to any acknowledged masters of stage-craft." The plans for the next few weeks at the Castle Square have just been announced, and the list of plays reveals extraordinary variety. It runs as follows: Oct. 15, "A Temperance Town," Oct. 22, "Sardou's Theodora," Oct. 29, "Julius Caesar," Nov. 5, "The Philistines," Nov. 12, "Monsieur Beaucaire," Nov. 19, "Quo Vadis," The performance of "Julius Caesar" on Oct. 15, will mark the beginning of another series of Shakespearean productions similar to that which received such high commendation last season. It should be remembered that although the Castle Square Theatre is situated at the corner of Tremont and Chandler streets, it is as accessible as if it were in the downtown theatre district. It may be reached from any point through the subway by transfer at Pleasant street, and all Tremont street cars from the south side of the city pass directly by its doors. It is moreover but a step from all the cars that pass through Berkeley and Dover streets.

A Badly Burned Girl.

Boston Food Fair.

The Boston Food Fair, now being held at Mechanics' Building, Boston, is on a much larger and finer scale than any previous food fair. The decorations are entirely unlike those of any other exposition, every inch of the decorative work being part of one general color scheme. The electric display itself is little short of marvelous, there being thousands of separate electric lights in the arches of the booths along the balcony of one of the halls, high up amid the decorations, and here and there throughout the entire building.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the Fair is the fact that four or five very fine entertainments such as "Ben Hur," "The San Francisco Disaster," and "Howard's Moving Pictures," are kept going almost continuously, and without any extra charge. The extra charge of any description is for seats in the balcony during the band concerts, 10 cents in being charged for the afternoon and 25 cents in the evening.

Beginning next Monday, Sousa and his band will give concerts daily, afternoon and evening at the Fair. It is to be assisted by Miss Ada Chambers, soprano soloist; Miss Jeanette Powers, violin soloist; Herbert L. Clarke, cornet soloist, and other renowned artists. The programme for the Sousa concerts has been prepared with exceptional care, and is one which will captivate every body.

Boston Theatres.

CASTLE SQUARE.
The popularity of Sardou seems undiminished. Last season the Boston Stage Society produced at the Castle Square Theatre no less than four of his plays, and a few weeks ago a fifth, "Gismonda" was presented. Now comes the announcement that his famous "Theodora" is to be given next week with all the splendid scenic equipment of the original production, and a special cast, including all the members of the Castle Square Stock Company. "Theodora" was the first drama that Sardou wrote for Sarah Bernhardt, and it helped to make the reputation of both the dramatist and the actress. It is being played at the Castle Square, it tells a strongly romantic tale of life in ancient Byzantium, and all players who remember the fine production of "Cleopatra" and "Gismonda" will surely find it a most interesting opportunity to see it. The cast will include Mr. Hansel, Miss Lawton, Mr. Waldron and the entire stock company.

Danger From The Plague.

There's grave danger from the plague of Coughs and Colds that are so prevalent, unless you take Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Mrs. Geo. W. Walker of Forest City, Me., writes: "It's a Godsend to people living in climates where coughs and colds prevail. I find it quickly ends them. It prevents Pneumonia, cures La Grippe, gives wonderful relief in Asthma and Hay Fever, and makes weak lungs strong enough to ward off Consumption, Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00. GUILD AND DRAPER.

The Governor and Lieutenant Governor are on the stump this week doing yeoman's service for the Republican ticket. Large crowds of earnest people have given them warm and hearty greetings at every place where they have appeared to make speeches, indicating a strong and lively interest in the outcome of the campaign.

There is a marked contrast between the Guild and Moran meetings which makes largely to the advantage of the Republican cause. Guild and Draper and Lodge deal in something more substantial than froth and "hot air," something that sober minded, reflecting men think more of and like better than the hysterical stuff that Moran and his coadjutors deal out, and they are winning votes—no doubt about that.

Guild and Draper are making sound, practical speeches all along the line. They are going about without fuss or feathers, quiet, orderly; no blowing of their trumpets, nor indulgence in spectacular displays. Sensible men like that sort of campaigning.

On the other hand, Moran and his crowd are noisy, theatrical, blatant. Moran's speeches are gassy, thin, windy, and sensational. He raves.

They who know tell us that every sign points to a big, old-fashioned Republican victory in this State on Nov. 6.

ELECTION DAY.

One week from next Tuesday, on November 6, the voters of this Commonwealth will go to the polls to elect State officers, Congressmen, members of the Legislature, etc., and the activity observed in political circles warrants the opinion that there will be a full vote. The contest now in progress indicates unusual interest on the part of the electors in the outcome.

The Republican plurality for Governor is placed by wise political calculators at about 40,000, while many claim that it will reach 50,000, and a few over sanguine ones have set it at 60,000. It is admitted everywhere that the Republican majority will be large enough for all practical purposes.

But it will be well for the party to guard against too much confidence in the result at the polls, and as our great President Lincoln was wont to say to the Army, "keep pegging away."

THANKSGIVING DAY.

President Roosevelt has named Thursday, Nov. 29, as a National Thanksgiving Day, which the Governors of the States will, as usual, adopt and proclaim. By law this annual feast is fixed for the last Thursday in November, and is a legal holiday.

We gather from the columns of the Medford Mercury some facts respecting the political movements of Mr. James M. Marden, a gentleman noted principally for the fashionable cut and fine texture of his garments, on whom the Democrats of this, the 6th, District have conferred the honor of a nomination for State Senator, which are quite surprising. The Mercury says this Mr. Marden, more commonly known as "Handsome Dan," is a resident of Roxbury, but has taken up a temporary abode in Medford lately, and registered there, in order to become eligible to the office he is ardently but vainly seeking. On which fact the Mercury comments as follows:

"Can it be possible that the Democratic party of the Sixth Middlesex Senatorial District, embracing such populous, flourishing and influential places as Winchester, Woburn, Arlington, Stoneham, Wakefield and Medford, is reduced to such an extremity that it is obliged to import a candidate from Boston in order to get a man suitable for the nomination for Senator?"

But, then, it will make no difference; he'll get snowed under so deep by Riley on election day that he won't know whether his home is in Medford or Boston, or where it is.

When the Democratic Representative convention had closed its labors at the Central House and Mr. J. B. Lewis, the Reading nominee, was about to leave for home he generously, and in a manner that evoked the highest loyalty to his party, and an intimate knowledge of their liking for good cheer, directed Landford Doherty to let the members of the convention have all the cigars and "soft" drinks they might ask for, and send the bill to him. A loquacious member subsequently reported that the amount and quality of the "soft" drinks called for and drank would have caused a broad smile to spread over the countenance of the most sedate graven image. Mr. Lewis is canvassing the District as an Independent, Democratic nominee for Representative to the Legislature, and is soliciting votes, especially from the Prohibitionists. That he is a generous, good hearted gentleman cannot be reasonably disputed.

There are all sorts of reasons, and good ones, too, why the discussion of possible Presidential candidates in 1908 has no legitimate place in the present Massachusetts political campaign. Moran was right when he said so to his party. Platform talk about Horace and his usefulness for high office can't help the Republicans in their endeavor to carry the State for Guild and Draper. Except in the election of Congressmen, national politics has no business in the campaign; and as to Presidential candidates, who knows what will happen in the next two years?

Candidate Lewis's Grand Rally on Woburn Common last night was a fizzle.

Seldom is the genius of even a country Editor able to bring forth so many things that are not so in so limited a space as the following from the Reading Chronicle:

"Samuel Thompson's desire to honor his college chum Baldwin, with whom he was accustomed to walk daily from Woburn to Cambridge, was responsible for the name 'Baldwin' apple. Thompson discovered the first Pecker apple tree, which he later named the 'Baldwin,' in Wilmington in 1793. Last Tuesday was 'Apple Tuesday,' so designated by the Fruit Growers Association two years ago at the St. Louis Fair and designed to be observed annually by replanting an apple tree sired by Baldwin. Samuel Thompson was later Count Rumford. Samuel Thompson was not a College mate of Loammi Baldwin of Woburn did not walk with him daily from Woburn to Cambridge [what for?]; the honor of the discovery of the Pecker (Baldwin) apple in Batters Row in 1793 is an open question; the name of this 'King of Apples' was changed because of what Col. Loammi Baldwin of Woburn did in improving and publishing its virtues; and Samuel Thompson was not Count Rumford. Benjamin Thompson of North Woburn, a scientist of universal fame, was Baldwin's College mate; supposedly ignorant of the Baldwin Apple; Knighted by the King of England; raised to the peerage and made Count Rumford by the Bavarian government in token of his services as Commander of its Army, and a reward for his scientific attainments and achievements.

It looks as though the Woburn Republican Ward and City Committee had concluded wisely in keeping the stump spellbinders at armslength and attending to local campaigning themselves. In making a "whirlwind" canvass this week the heavy ordinance slipped by Woburn, in consequence, probably, of the conviction that the Republicans of this city are fully competent to manage their own affairs to better advantage than could outsiders, including the eloquent political orators, who are arousing the populace to fever heat all over the State this week.

John B. Moran says he was fuming when he announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for President in 1908 at several of his rallies last week. All he demands, he says, is the Massachusetts delegation to the Democratic National convention; not, it isn't likely, for himself, but to turn over to Hearst, when the pinch comes between Hearst and Bryan. It looks as though the Massachusetts Democracy are for Hearst first, last and all the time.

Candidate Linscott isn't worrying any to speak of over his election prospects. He knows, as everybody else does, that he is perfectly safe in the hands of the intelligent voters of this District. Our only curiosity is to see, after the count, how much larger his majority will be than that of any other name on the ticket. His vote in Woburn is sure to be a recordbreaker.

The voluntary reduction of railroad fares by the Boston & Maine Company takes the wind out of the sails of Bill Chandler and other vocal New Hampshire politicians. "Othello's occupation's gone."

The Boston Journal of Tuesday morning contained a fine portrait of Mrs. A. H. Linscott, and an account of her moose shooting success in Maine last week.

The gentlemen who went down to Scarborough, Maine, last week on a duck shooting raid returned empty handed and far from jubilant. Too much water was the cause of their failure.

Artist Ben Champney and the A. C. Wyer family have returned to their winter residence in this city from North Conway, N. H., where Mr. Champney has passed each summer season for the last 40 years, at least.

According to the wording of a small ad in another column of this paper it appears that the finder of the leather bag, with money in it, that a lady lost on Montvale avenue last Tuesday, will do well to leave it at the JOURNAL office and get the reward.

Next Thursday evening, Nov. 1, a meeting is to be held at the Armory of Co. G on Montvale avenue to organize a Camp of the United Spanish War Veterans, at which Capt. Thos. McCarthy hopes there will be a full attendance of Spanish War boys to become charter members of the Camp.

Rev. James J. Keagan, rector, and Rev. James F. Doherty, curate, of St. Charles church, this city, attended the consecration of Bishop Walsh at Portland last week. A great gathering of New England clergymen and laymen were present to witness the imposing ceremonies.

Why wouldn't it be a wise and judicious plan for the Republicans to go to work and prevail on ex-Mayor William F. Davis to take the helm of State in this city again? Could they find a more popular candidate for Mayor, or better man for the office? "Brethren, think on these things."

Last Sunday was such an October day as gloomy minded poets write about—a dull, dark, spirit depressing day. An east wind cut around the corners of buildings, raised dust in streets, kept dead leaves whirling and tumbling over the ground, and giving people the blues. Monday wasn't a bit better.

Steps have been taken by the Board of Health towards abating the sewer nuisance in front of the stores opposite Lyceum Hall. The City Council have granted the request of the Board for $250 to lay a drainpipe from that point to Park street which, it is believed, will remedy the evil. It should have been done long ago.

Work on the new playground is progressing rapidly. Hugh Harkins, Woburn's well known ballplayer, has charge of the laying out of the diamond, and also of the men. Mr. Harkins says that when finished it will be one of the best in the State. He would be a first class man to take care of it, and no doubt would accept that position.

The football season is now in full flower, if one is allowed to judge from the reports of games in the metropolitan papers. Locally but little seems to be doing, at least, not much football talk is heard on the streets, and the presumption is that our boys have not yet got into the spirit of the sport this fall. That does not mean, however, that there is any lack of good pigskin talent in this city.

Miss Mary McGrath, daughter of Mr. James F. McGrath, the merchant, a popular and attractive young lady, was presented with a fine gold locket and chain the other evening by her numerous good friends. Miss Esther White made the presentation speech which was gracefully responded to by Miss McGrath. There was music, dancing, choice refreshments, and a happy evening passed by the young people.

The Gabolotte Club, composed of a score or more of the smartest young people in the city, held their annual meeting at the pleasant home of Mr. Henry H. Leathe, Francis street, last Friday evening, and also gave up a few hours to games of whist etc. Fred E. Leathe was elected President, and Florence L. Eaton, Secretary. Miss Dora J. Leathe and Miss Maud H. Littlefield won souvenir prizes. A luncheon was served, and a delightful season enjoyed.

Mr. Charles A. March, of the Law Division of the U. S. Pension Bureau at Washington, D. C., son of Rev. Daniel March D. of Woburn, writing of the Civil War pensioners in a private note to the Editor of the JOURNAL says: "Someone estimates that the last soldier in the War for the Union will have passed away by 1945." And yet, the surviving Veterans who fought in that War, and the men and women who were witnesses of and active in the stirring scenes of '61-'65, fail to realize that more than 40 years have elapsed since the close of that great struggle for the preservation of this Nation—it seems but yesterday to many of them.

Woburn and Stoneham friends of theirs have received invitations to the Silver Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Beau at their home in Florence, Mass., on Friday evening, Nov. 2. Their children are the instigators and managers of the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Beau were formerly well known and respected residents of Stoneham.

Early this week the JOURNAL received intelligence that the farmers in this vicinity were complaining of a serious lack of rain. They asserted that meteorological conditions, as they then existed, bore close resemblance to what is commonly called a drought, and evil consequences to crops and things were feared. It is sincerely hoped that their fears will not be realized.

Some people pretend to say that a slight flurry of snow was experienced here a few evenings ago, but the yarn lacks confirmation; indeed, it seems too improbable for belief. Roobacks are always in order, and more or less common, in a political campaign, and this snow flurry story is probably one of them, launched by some malicious minded person to effect the coming election.

Mr. Fred C. Keag, postoffice clerk, is heartily congratulated by the JOURNAL on his farewell to the state of blessedness last week and entry into the more respectable and happier ranks of the Benedictines. Miss Mabel Emma Russell is, also, congratulated on securing a first class young man for a husband. In the words of the lamented Joe Jefferson may they live long and prosper.

The candidacy of Mr. Lawrence Reade for the office of Mayor of this city, which he once filled with credit and honor, will be likely to give the politicians trouble. They, as a general rule, do not want to it to any great extent, and it is known that the licensed liquor sellers, who, in reality, direct and govern the actions of the local Democratic party, compass his defeat last year, and do not want him this.

Mr. Reade, however, has a large following of personal friends and is strong with the Hibernalis, and is likely to make things exceedingly warm and unpleasant for the politicians at the Democratic caucuses, and even more so on election day, if he should conclude to run as an independent candidate.

In exact conformity with the announcement made exclusively by the JOURNAL last Friday, Mayor Linscott's Maine hunting party returned to this city anywhere between Saturday evening last and Monday morning of this present week. Their physical condition was all that could have been desired. If any considerable number of deer was slain down in the Maine forests the fact was not generally known at City Hall, or, if known, a decree demanding silence on the part of official incumbents must have been issued by the executive head of the party immediately following their home arrival, and its mandates rigidly complied with. The incumbents do, however, go so far as to intimate that the Mayor's party had a great time Down East.

"Moran is Unfit"

Read What Leaders of John B. Moran's Own Party Say of Him:

"We feel obliged to state our conviction of the fundamental unfitness of Mr. Moran to fill the high and dignified office of governor of Massachusetts. The obligations of good citizenship are superior to those of partisanship; we are citizens of an honorable commonwealth charged with our share of the duty of maintaining and advancing the standards of government even better than Democrats."—J. A. Sullivan, Josiah Quincy, Arthur Lyman, J. C. Burke, E. L. Arundel, Nicholas J. Skerrett.

Mr. Moran as a Leader.
Congressman John A. Sullivan, a member of Mr. Moran's own party, says that a Moran assumption of leadership is certainly ominous of consequences, and he likens it to being whirled while about in the delirious circles of the tarantella while in the grasp of a political acrobat.

DO YOU WANT A POLITICAL ACROBAT IN THE GOVERNOR'S CHAIR?

Mr. Moran as a Public Official.
Speaking again Mr. Sullivan says: "If his manner of conducting grand jury proceedings is to be taken hereafter as the official standard in Massachusetts, well, may these honest citizens who value reputation above all things else exclaim: 'God Save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.'"

The secretary of the Boston Bar Association shows that during Moran's term as district attorney the cases pending have more than doubled, the indictments pending have more than tripled. His predecessor reduced the number of cases pending more than one-half. He has released 100 more criminals than his predecessor. The expenses of the office have been increased 30 per cent.

The Public Record of E. Gerry Brown.
Democratic and Independence League Candidate for LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.

The Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor has been a political will-o'-wisp for years. He started as a GREENBACKER. Touched the REPUBLICAN party in 1882. Flew to the support of Benjamin F. Butler as a DEMOCRATIC candidate for governor. Identified himself with the POPULIST movement, and became very prominent in the affairs of that particular ism. Was a leader in the WORKINGMEN'S POLITICAL LEAGUE. Again went back to the DEMOCRATIC party and ran for state office on that ticket. Has run for mayor of Brockton under various party appellations. Now becomes prominent as a DEMOCRAT and a leader in the INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE. One of the admirers and satellites of William R. Hearst.

This remarkable Political Changeling has shown himself to be a man of no settled conviction and one entirely incapable of rising to the dignity of state management upon any fixed policy.

Do You Want William R. Hearst Dictating the Policy of State Affairs?

North Woburn.

The Ladies Benevolent Society of the North church will serve their annual harvest supper Friday, Nov. 2. A splendid supper for 25 cents.

There is to be a grand Republican Rally here this evening, Nov. 2. Under the auspices of the Chemical Warfare Republican Club Congressman S. W. McCall, Senatorial candidate Herbert S. Riley, and Representative candidate Andrew R. Lincoln are to make speeches. Give them a rousing reception.

William Bixby, son of our good Doctor, Josiah P., writes from Panama where he is employed by the U. S. government as draughtsman of the building the great Canal. The ship he sailed from New York on had a tempestuous voyage to Colon, but finally pulled through all right. Three smart Woburn young men are now employed in professional work for Uncle Sam on the Canal. Wm. Bixby, Clarence Gage, son of A. E. Gage, Esq., of the Board of Assessors, and John Talty, each of whom has a fine situation and is paid a fat salary.

Our community deeply sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Casse of the village who were robbed of $900 in Boston last Friday from whence they were to sail for Italy, their native land, that day. It was their fortune, gathered by years of industry and economy here, and the loss of it struck them particularly hard blow. After buying tickets for himself and wife Mr. Casse met a brace of his countrymen, who proposed to be enroute for Italy and thus gained his confidence. When on the Common he was requested by one of the rogues to take his money, $900, and keep it with that Casse's, as he had a reputation for honesty. I reject it, I reject it, I reject it. In arranging the wads of bills for safe carriage in Casse's pocket, the man abstracted the whole sum, leaving a stub of paper for it. The pair left with a promise to return shortly. Casse waited an hour and then became suspicious. It led him to examine his money, but it was gone, of course. The victims returned to their homes here.

Made Happy for Life.
Great happiness came into the home of S. G. Blair, school superintendent, at St. Albans, Vt., when his little daughter was restored from the dreadful complaint he names. He says: "My little daughter had St. Vitus' Dance, which yielded to no treatment but grew steadily worse until as a last resort we tried Electric Bitters, and I rejoice to say, three bottles effected a complete cure. Quick, sure cure for nervous complaints, general debility, weakness, impoverished blood and malaria. Guaranteed by McLaughlin & Dennison, druggists. Price 50c."

Literary Notices.
Judge Shute, Edward Strateneyer, Everett T. Tomlinson, and Horatio Alger, Jr., occupy prominent positions in the November AMERICAN BOY with their stirring serials. Scarcely second to these are short stories. There is enough of adventure and humor to please boys, and those who are serious minded will find more things to keep them busy in the more than fifty items devoted to school, travel, biography, electricity, mechanics, amateur journalism, and other boy hobbies. For variety of contents and profuseness of illustration it surpasses any of its predecessors. There are some seventy-five illustrations, in addition to the preliminary list in colors that accompanies the number. The color cover is appropriate to the Thanksgiving season. $1.00 a year. The Sprague Publishing Co., Detroit, Mich.

The November McClure's is a striking number and will be remembered long beyond the usual term of magazine literature. The leading article is a brilliant challenge to the advocates of Spelling Reform, coming from no less an authority than Professor Hugo Munsterberg, Harvard's noted psychologist. Carl Schurz's American reminiscences open in this number with Mr. Schurz's first impressions of this country. The story of Montana describes the sale of the Montana legislature, telling how one man after another went down in defeat and dishonor, and painting with great dramatic effect the scene of Clark's election. Lincoln Steffens relates the story of Judge Lindsey's gallant fight against ignorant parents, a cynical police, and a corrupt ring. Burton Hendrick concludes The Story of Life-Literature. The Hanging of Mary Dyer, is one of McClure's most original departures in fiction. The Making of a Hay, relates the exciting rescue of a passenger train by an obscure section hand. The Reforming of a Bridegroom, is a human study of some Pennsylvania Dutch people, and when Jonathan Hatch Harkins Back, is full of homely humor and pathos. Justus Miles Forman contributes an artistic love story, Night and the Curious Drawn. Wood Doves, is a piece of highly imaginative verse. The November McClure's is a strong number, containing full-page color illustrations by Howard Pyle, Alice Barber Stephens, and Jessie Wilcox Smith. The cover design is a decorative drawing by N. C. Wyeth.

LAND COURT.

To C. Austin Wyman, Mary F. Wyman, Alice D. Place, Elizabeth C. Church, Laura E. Grammer, Emma H. Page, Minnie R. Stone, Edmund C. Colman, Francis A. Buckman, and Lizette G. Graham, all of Woburn; Gertrude T. Bailey of Ashland, and Rosemary E. Church, Truette, Aver, all in the County of Middlesex; Robert S. Sloan, Trustee, of Dover in the County of Norfolk; Horace Wyman of Worcester in the County of Worcester; the Boston and Lowell Railroad Company and the Boston and Maine Railroad Company, existing corporations having their principal places of business in Boston, in the County of Suffolk, all in said Commonwealth; William E. Church, Trustee, of Newport in the State of Vermont; and to all whom it may concern:

W. I. do hereby certify that the following is a true and correct copy of the petition filed in said Court by the City of Woburn, a municipal corporation, to register and confirm its title in the following described land with the buildings thereon situated in said Woburn, bounded: Beginning at the southeast corner of the premises of said land of Lizette G. Graham; thence southerly by said land of Graham and by land formerly of Charles Flagg about 108.5 feet; thence southerly by said Flagg's land about 112.5 feet to Main street; thence southerly by said Main street about 179.2 feet to land of Edmund C. Colman; thence westerly by said land of Colman about 475.5 feet; thence southeasterly by said land of Colman about 161.5 feet; thence easterly by said land of Colman about 228.5 feet; thence northeasterly by said land of Colman about 66.15 feet to land of Francis A. Buckman; thence southerly by said land of Buckman about 165.85 feet to Main street; and thence southerly by said Main street about 118.4 feet to the point of beginning.

W. I. am hereby cited to appear at said land Court to be held at Boston, in said County of Suffolk, on the twelfth day of November, A. D. 1906, at one o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, LEONARD A. JONES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fifth day of October, in the year nineteen hundred and six.

Attest with Seal of said Court.
[SEAL] CLARENCE C. SMITH, Recorder.

Year of Blood.

The year 1906 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tackett, of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood; which blood was the blood of Mr. Tackett's lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me to death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and as time has passed I am now as healthy as a Guarani." Get this arguement expected to come out to listen to these able exponents of Republican principles.

Hours of Sleep.

The belief that the hours of sleep should be artificially restricted is contrary to ordinary good sense. If the human body does not need sleep for the upbuilding of its tissues it will not call for it. A rule of health which cannot be wrong is to sleep as long as you have any inclination for it. The erroneous view on this subject is undoubtedly due to the fact that when the mind and body are thoroughly rested it is often difficult to arouse the mind from its comfortable lethargy. On the other hand, the man who is under a mental strain and sleeps only five or six hours at night is kept and alert soon after awakening. But it is an unhealthy attitude. His nerves are at a high tension, and he is on edge, so to speak. Such a strain long continued results inevitably in a nervous breakdown.—Cleveland Leader.

Lightning's Course.

"On the water," said a grizzled old boyman who stood smoking his corn-cob and surveying the bay the other day, "when you see a thunder storm rising you want to keep an eye on the lightning. If you see it in the distance striking down farther and farther to the right you want to get out of there as fast as you can. If you see it further and further to the left, it means that the storm is working to the right or to the left, and it may pass around you. But if you see it in the distance coming down in the same place and at the same time getting brighter and brighter, why, that indicates that it's coming straight toward you, and this is the time, son, when you want to make for home or get in your shell and make everything snug till the storm passes over."—Exchange.

The Human Head.

An Irishman once defined the human head as "a bulbous excrescence, of special use to many as a peg for hanging a hat on, as a barber's block for supporting wigs, as a target for shooting at when rendered conspicuous by a shining helmet, as a snuffbox or a chat-box, as a machine for fitting into a buffer or pulley, as a receptacle for frowns, fancies, follies, passions, prejudices, predilections—for anything, in short, but brains."—Exchange.

Amusements of the Table.

"I waited ten minutes for a car to-day," the lady was saying, "and then it passed me without stopping."

It was afterward recalled that the habitually silent man had been having unusual difficulty with his chops.

South End Ball.

The thirteenth annual concert and ball, given by the South End Social Club at Lyceum Hall last Friday evening, was attended by one of the best crowds that have ever turned out to a similar entertainment. There was a large number of out of town friends. The concert, from 8.30 to 9.30, was one of the finest ever given at a hall. It consisted of solo, "Aunt You Coming Back to Old New Hampshire, Molly," and "When the Mocking Birds are Singing in the Wildwood" by Mr. John Watts of Wakefield; illustrated song, "Sweet Aileen," by Miss Mollie Garvey, given in fine style; illustrated song, "When the Morning Glines Twine Around the Same Old Door," by Mr. Thomas Kearns made a decided hit; solo, by Mr. Joseph Breslin. Besides these there were two xylophone solos by Mr. William Connolly. The moving pictures and illustrated song furnished by the Adams & Coughlin Co., were fine, especially the song pictures, which were most elaborate. Calmar's Orchestra furnished the music and never played better.

Drone Beetles.

Drone beetles have a reputation for weather wisdom among country folk, who regard a flight of beetles as a sign of fine weather. M. Fabre, a French naturalist, wishing to ascertain if this supposition was correct, caged a number of beetles. One fine evening when everything indicated a fine weather for the following day not a beetle flew about. In fact, during the night a storm broke out, and rain fell all next day. Another evening, where there were no signs of fine weather, the beetles flew about in all directions. During the night the clouds vanished, and next day there was brilliant sunshine. According to M. Fabre, drone beetles during three months are living barometers, more deserving of credence than physical instruments, their keen sensitiveness to the electric tension of the atmosphere being much greater than that of mercury. It has even been demonstrated that drone beetles are affected by atmospheric disturbances a long way off and that they sometimes grow restless when there is a storm more than sixty miles away.

He Disappeared.

Jerome K. Jerome once figured in what the reporters call a "mysterious disappearance." On a wager he agreed to vanish, and took himself off while his friends were still on the alert. He disappeared while they were reading a mysterious letter which he handed to one of the party. When last seen he was stepping aboard a houseboat on the Thames. Then for a month he seemed to have gone out of existence. His friends put the police on his track, calling for his arrest for stealing the boat. A month passed and then the novelist and the boat appeared at the latter's old moorings. What he had done was simply to take the boat a little upstream, then during the night erase her name and substitute another and change the color of the boat, and there so as to render her as unlike her former self as possible. His scheme was a success in every particular.

The Origin of a Word.

The London Chronicle tries to trace the origin of the word "typhoon." "Ty-fung," it is explained in some dictionaries, is Chinese for "a great wind," and since the typhoon is a phenomenon of the Chinese seas it seems conclusive. But there is no doubt, apparently, that "typhoon," which Haklayt spelled "tuffoon" and Dampier "tuffoon," comes to us through Portuguese for the Arabic, Persian and Indian "tufan," and it is almost impossible not to see in this a relation of the ancient Greek "typhos" or "typhon," a whirlwind. But these are practically identical with the Greek word for smoke or vapor, from which come our "typhus" and "typhoid." So perhaps the Chinese part of it is only an extraordinary linguistic coincidence, after all.

Luminous Paint as Night Lights.
The connection between earthquakes and luminous paint would hardly be apparent to any one without explanation. It nevertheless exists, and the use to which it is put invests it with the utmost importance just for the few critical moments of the shock. In the Philippine Islands, where earthquakes are not uncommon, small metal plates coated with luminous paint are placed about the premises that at the first warning the inmates are quickly guided to the door and thus to the street. In Manila it is laid on in patches about the bedrooms and staircases, serving as guides for the door handles and the stairs, night lights being considered especially dangerous, as likely to set fire to the falling houses and thus to roast the inmates in their own homes.

Caged Until Married.

On a certain island in the Pacific it is stated that the natives are still in the habit of confining their girl children in cages until they are of an age to marry. These cages are constructed of palm branches, and the girls are imprisoned in them when they are two or three years old. They are not allowed to leave their cage under any pretext whatever, and they are only taken out once a day to be washed. The children are said to grow up strong and healthy in spite of their incarceration.

Fatherly Advice.

"Papa," said the girl with the new engagement ring, "did I understand you to say that you intended to buy me a piano for a wedding present?"
"Yes, dear," replied her father, "but I wouldn't advise you to mention it to George. He might break the engagement."—Chicago News.

Flexible Ivory.

Ivory may be rendered flexible by immersion in a solution of pure phosphoric acid—specific gravity 1.13—until it partially gains in transparency. Then it is washed in cold, soft water and dried. It will harden if exposed to air, but may again be made pliable by immersing in hot water.

Propositions.

An English daily had the following advertisement: "Wanted—A gentleman to undertake the sale of a patent medicine. The advertiser guarantees it will be profitable to the undertaker."—Christian Register.

The Correct Explanation.

"Yes," said Dubbey, the actor, "I had a splendid part in the show, but I—er—took sick and"— "Ah," interrupted Wiseman, "you mean you didn't take well?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Patience is the strongest of strong drugs, for it kills the giant Despair.—Jerold.

Beginnings Over.

Literary Notices.

The Rev. A. A. Notebaert is the author of Actual Conditions in the Congo Free State, published in the November number of DONAHUE'S MAGAZINE. The Jamestown Exposition, Some Summer Drives, Joseph Clarke's Prince of India, Catholic Royalities, and People in Print, are other illustrated features presenting a variety of pleasant and instructive reading. The Elect of the Garden, is a study of children. H. M. Sillard, writes of Barry Sullivan's Early Days in Cork. The Rt. Rev. John S. Vaughan of London, and others contribute verse. There are some good short stories and an interesting installment of the serial, The Desert and the Snow.

THE NATIONAL MAGAZINE for November has a distinctively harvest festival Thanksgiving spirit. Its editor, Joe Mitchell Chapple, has taken a trip back to his old home in North Dakota, riding through the great wheat fields and rich country of that remarkable State, and he draws a vivid picture of the wealth and grandeur which he found (most of the time looking from the windows of a Pullman) and this he compares with the conditions more than twenty years ago when he went with his father's household goods, and farm machinery and stock into the great wheat State. Senator Hansbrough and Mr. W. R. Kellogg are also contributors to the North Dakota articles, which form a great feature of this number. These articles are splendidly illustrated, and give one a remarkably clear idea of the development that has taken place in this one of the richest of Uncle Sam's great States. Then, as if to complete the story, we find at the very beginning of the magazine in Affairs at Washington, that Mr. Chapple has written of the nation's prosperity and of the bumper crops as shown by official reports in the office of Secretary Wilson at Washington. He draws some splendid comparisons, showing what would be the result if there should be in Washington a thank offering, as in the old days in Jerusalem. It would create lively times and perhaps consternation, for there would be mountains of golden squashes, to say nothing of pumpkins that would make the dome of the Capitol look like a mere fly speck. The rapid gains in circulation made by the NATIONAL is clear evidence of the popularity of that great American publication.

A Year of Blood.

The year 1903 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tackett, of Ames, Ky., as a year of blood. His lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me to death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, with the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and as time has passed, my health has been maintained. I am now as well as ever, and my lungs are sound. I am deeply indebted to Dr. King's New Discovery for its cure. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Campden's Shave

By FRANK POWNALL

"Surely you are not going to break our engagement just because I shaved off my mustache?" pleaded Campden. "That isn't just fair, you know. I can grow one again in a few weeks. Don't spoil a lifetime."

"It's not so much the loss of the mustache," said Mabel Devant. "You should know what I mean, though of course you will pretend to be ignorant. I hate duplicity."

"Oh, what a tangled web we weave," he quoted. "You don't mind telling me what particular sin you have found in me, do you? I admit that I did buy some candy for Miss Travers, if that's what you are making all this talk about. I might add in self defense that it's the littlest Miss Travers; she's five, I believe."

"If you are going to indulge in such brutal joking I shall say nothing further," said Miss Devant haughtily. "I have been similarly patient. If you only had confessed I should have had no more to say. As it is, I can see nothing in your conduct for which I can find the slightest excuse."

"But see now, Mabel," he explained. "I haven't been doing anything. I haven't murdered a man for at least a week, and my last bank robbery is two months back. I feel that I have a clean slate so far as this last unhappy week is concerned, and yet you come back from town and want me to confess to a calendar of crimes on the argument that a good husband should tell his wife everything. I don't admit that argument, but all the same if you'll give me a clew to the sort of crime you want me to confess to I'll try to think up something."

Mabel turned on her heel and walked off. It was not a very straight nor steady tread, but she held her head high and tried to keep back the tears until she reached her room. She succeeded until the elevator left her at her floor; then she ran down the corridor, the picture of woe.

When she finally recovered her composure and went down to dinner there was no Harry Campden waiting for her in the hall. Instead she ran into Nettie Braden, who appeared to have been waiting for her and who led her out on the almost deserted piazza.

"I think it's a shame," began Miss Braden. "That awful man packed up his things and went to town on the afternoon train."

"Harry?" asked Miss Devant comprehensively.

"Without even a goodbye," she admitted. "I think it's just too terrible. Come in and have dinner and forget that such a horrid man ever lived."

"I don't feel hungry," declared Mabel, blinking back the tears and seeking her room for the second time.

The next few days were as miserable for her as they were for Campden up in town. He and Mabel were to have been married in October, and while he puzzled his brain for some explanation of the mystery she took refuge in a woman's comfort and went about the beach with an ever ready handkerchief.

The Harrises were giving a house party through September, and Mabel accepted their invitation because she knew that they were not acquainted with Harry and that there she would be safe. For the first time since the break she felt happy as she came down the stairs the morning after her arrival.

The boat had been becalmed, and she had arrived late, but the fresh morning air was a temptation, and she ran down the stairs just as the servants were opening the house.

Out on the piazza she paused a moment to observe a blue coated back; then she advanced with an air of carelessness and made for the opposite end of the porch.

At the sound of the steps the man sprang up, and she gave a scream as she recognized Campden.

"I did not know that you were to come," he began, as he approached her. "I just met the Harrises, and was not aware that they knew you."

"They are very old friends," she said coldly. "I used to go to college with Mrs. Harris."

"That's nice," he observed conventionally. "But see here, Mabel, if we are going to be fellow guests for a few days, won't you please tell me what all the row was about?"

"You should know," she said sedately.

"I should," he confessed, "but I don't. All I know is that you ran up to town for a week. When you came back to the beach you asked me to confess my sins, and when I said I had nothing to confess except the self evidence that I had shaved off my mustache you made that the excuse for breaking the engagement."

For a moment Mabel paused, then desire for the truth overcame her reserve. "I wanted to see if you would tell me the truth," she explained. "When I went away you promised to tell me if you had misbehaved. You got into some love-making scrape and never told me a word about it."

"So that's it, is it?" he asked. "You want to know why I kissed Beth Connors on the piazza?"

"I see you realize at last what the offense was."

"I did not know until just this moment that you knew Nettie Braden. She and Mrs. Harris were schoolmates. So were you. You must all have known each other. Miss Braden was a west ern girl, and I never supposed you had met her."

"I don't see where Miss Braden fits into this story," she said severely. "I believe it concerns Miss Connors."

"Nettie Braden is the heroine," he explained. "The Connors person is just the villainess. Promise never to tell?"

"No, I shall make no promise."

"Very well," he said. "If you don't care, that puts things in a different light." He had half turned away when a hand was lightly laid upon his arm.

"Please go on," said Mabel pensive.

"You know I care, I shall not tell."

"You know," she said, "that when you told me that you came up to town?"

"He had half turned away when a hand was lightly laid upon his arm."

THE WEEKLY OFFERS THE DAILY.

It is claimed by some people, and observation and study convince us, not from a selfish point of view, that the claim is substantially based, that the weekly newspaper is recovering its former respected position in public estimation, and shearing the dailies.

The Weekly, edited with care and ability; its columns of original matter possessing literary merit, often of a high order, commends itself to the intelligent reader more surely than it is possible for the average country Daily. Such a paper, with a responsible and respected personality behind it, is read, digested, and exerts an influence for good.

The Daily is the medium through which, in most cases, matters of no real interest are conveyed to an indifferent public; it has no opinion on current affairs; it exerts no influence. On the other hand, the Weekly, conscientiously conducted, with a desire to benefit its patrons—is studiously perused with deliberation and read, consequently appreciated at its true value.

There can be no doubt but that the Weekly newspaper is regaining its old time importance, and that, too, at the expense of many of the Dailies.

The recent founding of Rigney's Magazine supports, as far as it goes, the above views.

CHOOSE WISELY.

If signs and conditions count for anything, the Republicans stand a good show for electing their candidates for Mayor and Aldermen next month. This, of course, providing they choose wisely men for the positions.

The present city administration, the work of Republicans, is a respectable one individually, the Mayor being a gentleman of standing and worth, and the Board composed of citizens of high character and intelligent administrators of public affairs. Another just such a city government should be chosen at the approaching election.

There are indications to spare of a big Democratic split and one that will be likely to disappear at the polls. If due advantage is taken of this, there is no reason why the present administration may not easily be duplicated in personal merit, official integrity, and ability to give our city a first-rate government for 1907, at the next election.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES.

The Republicans of Woburn are to hold caucuses to nominate candidates for municipal offices on Saturday evening, Nov. 24.

It is, perhaps, needless to remark that they should be fully attended.

John W. Johnson, Esq., will retire from the Presidency of the Woburn National Bank on Jan. 1 next. He has had the matter under advisement for some time and finally concluded that, all things considered, and although he likes and fully values the position, and the Directors are desirous that he should remain at the head of the institution, it is his duty to cut out that part of his work and give more time and attention to private affairs. As a shareholder and member of the Board of Directors Mr. Johnson's interest in the success of the Bank will continue unabated and its success promoted by his connection with it. Mr. Frank W. French, who has served the Bank faithfully and with marked professional ability for several years as bookkeeper, has left it to accept a fine position with a business house in Boston, for which he is admirably qualified. President Johnson and the Directors speak very highly of Mr. French as an accountant and gentleman.

The Republicans, it is said, are looking the field over carefully for a candidate for Mayor, but who that fortunate person will be cannot be determined until the caucuses are held on Nov. 24. Some of them have thought of Frank B. Richardson; but he refuses to take nomination. Others are talking up Ex-Mayor Davis; but it is doubtful if he would run again. Fred, still, favor the choice of Ald. Frank J. Brown, and, if acceptable to him, will work for his nomination. If he would consent to run, President William E. Blodgett of the City Council would come mighty close to carrying the primaries unanimously, and his election would be without doubt follow. He is one of the clearest headed business men in this city, and as President of the Council has won the respect and confidence of the Aldermen and people. But, we fear, it will be a difficult task to convince him that duty demands his acceptance of the honor.

Mayor Linseott absolutely declines to accept a second nomination for the office of Mayor. It has been reported for some weeks past that this would be his determination. His reason for declining the solicitations of many leading citizens to take another term, which the JOURNAL is aware of his having received, is that a proper discharge of his official duties has seriously interfered with his business interests, and these he could not afford to sacrifice for public office. Mr. Linseott has made a good and highly efficient Mayor, a fact which is everywhere admitted, and his consent to fill the chair another year would have pleased a large majority of the voters of Woburn.

Senator Daniel W. Lane, the Republican candidate for Congress in the 11th (Boston) District, one of the Democratic strongholds of that city, was, of course, defeated at the November election, a result which many Woburn friends deeply regret. But he and they have the satisfaction of knowing that his honorable and gentlemanly campaign won the respect of his opponents and the admiration of all.

Mr. Edward G. Brackett has been announced as an Independent candidate for Mayor, and will run on nomination papers. Candidates are likely to be plenty.

—The "Big Four" know what will happen if Lawrence Reade is turned down at the Democratic caucuses; therefore, he holds the reins.

—Members of Co. G are to give another of their complimentary assemblies on Nov. 22. No dancing parties are more popular, or give greater pleasure, than these.

—A light coating of snow partially covered the ground last Wednesday morning. It soon disappeared. Sleighting for Thanksgiving wouldn't be a bad thing to take, would it?

—Mr. Lawrence Reade is attending strictly to his political fences. "Parlor caucuses" and conferences are quite common at his hospitable residence these moonless evenings.

—Mr. A. V. Haynes still carries on the harness business and, although 82 years old, is at his workbench every day, Sundays excepted, early and late. He is a smart and active man, and pure gold.

—Miss H. Josephine Ellis reached her home in this city from Europe last Sunday. She was abroad 9 or 10 months, and her travels and visits in the Old Country proved highly enjoyable to her.

—Last week the JOURNAL made a mistake in announcing the date of the second-hand clothing and furniture sale by the women of the Unitarian Parish as on Nov. 27—it should read Saturday, Nov. 17.

—Mr. J. J. Grothe, whose carriage factory is on Everett street, has recovered from a serious illness from blood poisoning which at one point threatened the necessity of amputation of one of his arms.

—A few evenings since the St. Charles C. T. A. settled the question of dancing beyond all future controversy. After a spirited debate the judges decided that "Dancing is beneficial to the human race," and don't you forget it!

—The first lecture in the Burbeur Course is to be given in Lyceum Hall on Monday evening, Nov. 19, by Mrs. La Salle Corbett Pickett, whose theme is to be "The Friends of Yesterday."

This lady is reputed to be a great lecturer, and her subject an entertaining one.

—If current reports are reliable, the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co. are to open an early day and run a through line from Boston to Concord, N. H., via Medford, Winchester, Woburn, N. Woburn, Wilmington, Lowell, Nashua and Manchester. It will be a great route.

—Why wouldn't the Republicans do well to nominate Ald. Fred J. Brown for Mayor?

—Crawford, the confectioner; Crovo, the fruiterer; Linnell, the provisioner; Carlson, the shoemaker, and others along the west side of Main street, are to be relieved of the noxious odors emanating from the imperfect drainage they have been subjected to for years past, by the installation of a suitable sewer. Persistent petitioning by them, backed by the JOURNAL, has, at last, brought relief.

—A powerful and welcome rain-storm prevailed in this section Sunday and the night following, and more of the same kind would have been gratefully received. It had become very dry indeed, and a heavy fall of rain was needed. Last week Water Com. Hayward said Horn Pond has seldom been so low as then, and a water famine was imminent. The storm of Sunday brought some relief, and more of it is likely to come.

—The Messrs. Johnson, by their agent, Mr. Frank W. French, have put the front of Mr. Fred P. Brooks's drugstore into the most attractive shape possible, with which Mr. Brooks is very much pleased. New windows with spacious show-rooms for the exhibition of goods, wares and merchandise, with a change of door location and other artistic touches, make it look like a new business place, and give it a decidedly more refined appearance.

—A reunion of the family of the late Mr. William H. Cummings was held at the residence of the son Frank H. Cummings, 16 Cleveland avenue, last Sunday. The company consisted of Mrs. Hannah E. Cummings of Winthrop, widow of William H. Cummings; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Cummings of Winthrop, Fred A. Cummings, and William W. Cummings. The day, although a stormy one outside, was most agreeably spent by the mother, 4 sons and their families.

—Mr. Thomas Mulken has finished the School Census of this city for 1906, and is ready to report to the authorities that the number of males and females of school age is just about as it was last year. On account of the removal of the big McKee plant to Beverly, and some other causes, he feared a large falling off, but the enumeration, he rejoices to say, shows no material change from that of 1905. He raked the city over with great care, and finished the work in good season, as usual.

—The annual dramatic entertainments of the Sons of Veterans Club are always first-rate, indeed, we might truthfully add, the best. They never fail to draw a crowded house, either. On Wednesday evening the 1906 annual is to be given in Lyceum Hall, and the play selected is "Blow for Blow," for the presentation of which thoroughly equipped talent will be employed. The drama is a rattling good one; the audience will like it; and our advice to everybody is, go and enjoy it. And, besides, the "Sons" are deserving of a liberal public patronage.

—Church sales of second-hand clothing, furniture, etc., inaugurated and conducted by the church women, are a striking feature of business activities in this city at the present time. They have thrown trading in pigs, doughnuts, angelcakes, and Parker House rolls into the shade to a considerable degree, and exert no small effect on church suppers and feasts. Large profits are reported from these frequent sales, and the churches are benefited, to a considerable extent, by the holding of them; indeed, they almost might be said to be parish handmaids.

—Ald. James H. Connolly has publicly announced his candidacy for the office of Mayor and published the platform of principles on which he intends to conduct his canvass. It is an elaborate document, specifically, plainly worded, and carries on its face the spirit of a "square deal" for everybody.

—The effect of his party remains to be seen. He will have to face valiant foremen at the caucuses—Reade, McGrath, and doubtless others and just where he will be at when the vote is counted is the serious question to be considered. The "Big Four" might possibly answer it now.

—Rev. Daniel March, D. D., Pastor Emeritus of the First Congregational church of Woburn, in the 91st year of his age, a thinker, preacher and author of eminence, went to Nahant last Sunday, in the wind and rain, and delivered with vigor and grace, the annual "Old People's Day" sermon in the Orthodox church there. It was reported on Monday, no doubt truthfully, that the Doctor, finding the electricity too slow for him, donned his waterproof garments and arctic and footed it all the way over, a distance of nearly 3 miles, and didn't mind it half as much as the modern boy would.

—Rain prevented the occupation of the sacred desk at Trinity church by Rev. Dr. Henry Nash, Professor in the Cambridge Episcopal Theological School, last Sunday evening, to the regret of Rector Beckman and his parishioners, and likewise to that of the Editor of this paper, who lived in the same Western town with his father, Rev. Mr. Nash, Rector of the Episcopal church there, and his family, quite a good many years ago, when Harry, the present Cambridge Professor, was a bright little lad in knickerbockers, and went to school with other lads who have since made their mark in the world.

—The funeral of Edward A. Dow, who died at his home, 13 Myrtle street, last Monday morning, Nov. 12, 1906, after a long and painful illness, was held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Henry C. Parker, pastor of the Unitarian church. The burial ceremonies, at Woodbrook, were performed under the direction of Mr. Horch Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of which he was a member. He was the son of Stephen and Celinda T. Dow, born in Woburn on Sept. 29, 1857. Following the business of his grandfather, General Abijah Thompson, and his father, he successfully carried on leather manufacturing here for several years, and at his death was considered one of the richest men in this city. He left a wife and many relatives to mourn over his early decease.

—Miss Emma F. Hovey entertained her friend Miss Davis of Providence last Saturday.

—The 14 young men graduates of the Woburn High School now at Harvard University formed a dinner party at the University last Tuesday evening, and concluded to continue the custom for the promotion of good fellowship.

—Mr. F. Percival Lewis has given organ recitals recently in Asbury Temple, Waltham; Church of the Messiah, Boston; and for the exhibition of a new organ in Rochester, N. H., playing from memory on all three occasions.

—Please read the notice in this paper which treats of the Bazaar and supper to be given by the Ladies Aid Society of Trinity church. The JOURNAL has no hesitation assuring a good time and fine supper for everybody present.

—Dr. Henry Sylvester Nash of the Episcopal Theological School of Cambridge, who was to preach at Trinity church last Sunday evening did not come to Woburn because of Sunday's storm, postponing his coming until Sunday evening, November 25.

—The Mother's Meeting will be held in the parlor of the First Congregational church Friday afternoon, Nov. 23, at 3 o'clock. The subject "The Father's Responsibility in the Training of the Children" will be considered. A cordial invitation is extended to all mothers.

—Towanda Club was represented at the funeral of Edward A. Dow yesterday by William C. Parker, Joseph H. Parker and Fred F. Lowell.

—The towns of Hopkinton, southwest of Framingham is the latest west of Framingham to be supplied with electric light by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company for electric service for street lighting. Arrangements have now been practically completed whereby the Edison Company will take over from the estate of L. E. Coolidge the small plant, which has been used to operate a small number of lights in the town.

—Annual Play of the S. V. Club in Lyceum Hall, on Nov. 24, 1906, one of the best amateur performances ever presented to a Woburn audience will be given for the approval of the management of Mr. Frank E. Fowle of Malden. The play is "Blow for Blow," and this year's drama will be up to the high standard already set. Your patronage is solicited and a pleasant evening assured. Tickets may be obtained at Brooks's drug store.

—The Danish Brotherhood, composed of many of the best ladies and gentlemen in this city, held their first assembly last Friday evening, which proved to be a most delightful affair. The Paulsen Brothers Orchestra furnished fine music for the evening. The assembly will be continued through the winter.

—The members of the cast of "A Psychological Moment" to be given by the King's Daughters in connection with the Trinity Parish Fair, Nov. 22 and 23, are Miss Bertha Trull, Miss Beatrice Whitney, Mrs. George Low, Miss Hester Parker, Miss Edith Hall, Miss Addie Godkin and Miss Helen Stanton.

—Yesterday the rector of Trinity church and the following Sunday School teachers, Mrs. M. P. Strini, the Misses Lydia Allen, Claire Baldwin and Josephine Hart attended the annual conference of the Sunday School Union of the diocese of Massachusetts in Trinity church, Boston, and the Young Men's Christian Association of that city.

—Last week Mr. E. C. Sanderson, electrical engineer and contractor of Winchester, for the Edison Illuminating Company of Boston, wired the JOURNAL plant in fine and perfectly satisfactory manner, and left it Saturday afternoon ready for the "juice."

—Mr. John Jones of Cleveland, Ohio, one of the 8 or 10 expert electricians employed by Mr. Sanderson, did the work, which was a guarantee that everything was done shipshape and to stay. The Edison Company are doing a good deal of electrical work in this city by Mr. Sanderson, who is exclusively employed by them. Last Monday morning they began a big job of wiring at McGrath's department store.

—At early candlelight last Wednesday Towanda Club, the leading social organization in this city, held its Ladies Night and delighted the large and fashionable company that graced the occasion by their presence. The assembly, in the nature of a dress parade, and, as such, an immense success. Elegant female costumes were everywhere to be seen and admired; precious jewels flashed in the brilliant illuminations of the beautifully prepared rooms of the clubhouse; urbanity characterized the movements of the attendants; the gallant gentlemen were on their metal; and everything was in a room with just the right kind of sparkle and brilliancy which will be startlingly impressive, especially to persons who have not been to such a church. The finest and most satisfactory Ladies Nights the Towanda has ever given.

—Last Saturday night Harry Daw, a clerk at Mr. William H. Lewis's Highland street grocery store, barely escaped death by gas asphyxiation at his boardinghouse, 14 Court street. He was found senseless in the bathroom to which he had repaired on leaving his bed, in a dazed condition, Sunday morning. After while physicians brought him around and on Monday he was all right again.

Millionaire

Marauder

"Going downtown, Dick?"

"Not in this mood. My umbrella has a broken rib."

"You are almost a surgeon. Why don't you set it?" asked Joe. "Take mine and have yours mended."

"Have mine fixed, too, will you?"

called a voice from the next room.

"Mine needs a patch," said another young student of medicine, appearing in the door.

"I say, get the handle put on mine while you're about it," demanded a third.

Dick departed with Joe Dart's umbrella over his head and three disabled ones besides his own under his arm.

After leaving them with an umbrella mender he did some shopping and went into a corner drug shop to wait for a car. He was absorbed in the marvelous representations of a new patent medicine until, glancing out of the window, he saw his car, seized the nearest umbrella and hurried to the door.

As he passed out a feminine voice cried:

"Stop thief! He's stolen my umbrella!"

Without the faintest suspicion that it referred to him Dick ran and jumped on the car.

When he reached the boarding house

he carried Joe's umbrella to his own room and forgot it until the next rainy day, when his friends inquired for their mended property.

"The repairs will be finished today."

"I'll bring your umbrellas over my way back from the hospital," he told them.

When he went out with Joe's umbrella, which he had not returned, it struck him as being rather small for a man, although it had not occurred to him when he carried it before.

As he seated himself in the car going up town the woman next to him muttered an angry ejaculation. Dick moved his bunch of umbrellas and apologized, fearing he had set it on her foot, when to his astonishment she whispered:

"I congratulate you, young man.

You have had a very successful morning. If it were not for making a scene that would get my name into the papers, I should denounce you here and now."

Dick was speechless. He started to his feet.

"Don't you suppose I recognize my stolen umbrella right there in your hand?"

"North street!" bawled the conductor.

"I will leave you to your own conscience," added the woman and was gone before Dick recovered sufficiently to retort.

"I lost this your umbrella?" he asked

Joe when he reached the house.

"It's five times as good. Where did you get it?"

"I must have exchanged with somebody," said Dick ruefully.

"Take my silver watch out and swap

it off for a gold one, will you?" said

Joe.

"Who shall you take to the next assembly?" Joe inquired later.

"I have asked Miss Mildred Wells, commented him to his conscience in the street car.

"The surprise was mutual. Dick's first impulse was to laugh, but immediate contact with a loaded weapon in the hands of a feminine fury is not stimulating to one's sense of humor if the situation is sustained.

"Ah, ha, young man!" she cried triumphantly. "I have got you now—"

"Daniel come to judgment!"

"In the lion's den, you mean," said

Dick.

"You are delivered into my hands by an interposition sent direct from Providence."

"You've mistaken the postmark; it's from the other place," protested the prisoner.

It was futile to explain.

"You shall not escape me a second time. March straight into that closet."

She locked him in, withdrew the key and left the room.

Dick glared his ear to the keyhole, heard an electric bell, followed by the beating of the front door, and his cus-tomian returned, accompanied by Mildred.

"Consign Carrie gave me permission to go to the dance, mamma," she said,

"and we left, as we thought, in plenty of time to reach here before you."

"What do you mean by 'we'?" I found you alone at the front door."

"Why, Dick—I mean Mr. Brown—was with me. My key wouldn't work, so he got in the window. He must be in the house somewhere. It's funny you haven't seen or heard him."

"I caught a young thief in the act of hiding under my bed, and I have

BLODGETT FOR MAYOR.

The result of the Republican caucus last Saturday night, however, is one who had given study to the situation, except, perhaps, in the matter of the size of Mr. Blodgett's majority, which, it must be confessed, exceeded the calculations of the most sanguine of his friends. The Republicans of Woburn can always be trusted to do the right thing when duty calls, and to choose wisely their candidate for public office in cases of individual contests. This, too, on their own motion, for Republicans, as a general rule, are intelligent, think for themselves, and favor good government.

The valuable services Mr. Blodgett has rendered the city this year as member of the City Council, and President of the same, are appreciated by the Republicans, and for them, as well as on the score of his personal merit and business qualifications, they thought he should be the next Mayor. He has exerted a strong and wholesome influence on both the executive and legislative branches of the city government ever since the year came in, which augurs well for a clean and efficient administration during 1907.

A personally popular young man as Mr. Blodgett's competitor in the caucuses, whose friends stood manfully by him and refused to strike their colors until the vote was counted; but they failed, signally, to land him.

Our city is now blessed with a good administration in all its departments, and a strong desire is abroad that the conditions at City Hall may continue another twelvemonth, to say the least. This, the people feel can be accomplished by the election of William E. Blodgett for Mayor and the Republican candidate for Aldermen on Dec. 11. The present outlook for this is favorable. Substantially the entire Republican party will vote for Blodgett. A considerable number of Democrats, friends and supporters of good government, it is believed, will also vote for him; and the hearings among the Democrats will increase his chances of election. The Aldermanic vote should, and probably will, follow close to that for Mayor.

Briefly summed up, the prospect for electing the entire Republican ticket is flattering. It is a good one from top to bottom, and interest in its success appears to be strong and active.

WATER METERS.

Although the subject of water meters has become somewhat threadbare here and the agitation of it monotonous, it has not, at last accounts, been dropped by our city authorities. A few evenings since the Finance Committee, members of the Board of Public Works, Mr. Gilbert, and others, discussed at length in conference, but came to no conclusion on the question of installing the system in Woburn.

It was admitted by all the members of the conference, as it is everywhere by people of common sense, that the distribution of public water by meters is the only fair and equitable method that can be employed for the purpose, and where financial and other conditions warrant it the system could be profitably adopted.

But the situation in this city is exceptional. The obstacle in the way of making the proposed change a financial one. The city is clearly explained by Water Committee member Hayward at the conference. The Water Department is, or soon will be, in straightened circumstances. The demand for a new pump at the station has become imperative, as the present one is liable to give out at any time; the whole plant, which has been down about 30 years, must very soon give way to a new one; the cost of installing meters would be heavy; and the additional expense which the change would necessitate would reach nearly, or quite, $50,000 annually.

Commissioner Hayward, while admitting all the advantages of the meter system, and its superiority over the method of water distribution now in vogue, thought the city in no condition to adopt it at the present time. And, we think, the public will agree with him.

At the present writing, now that the smoke of the great caucus battles has cleared away, it looks very much as though Lawyer Grace L. Norris would be re-elected a member of the School Board on Dec. 11, next. She has been unanimously nominated by both political parties, which, most people think, is tantamount to an election. That is our opinion, too, as we have been correctly informed, she has made, in years past, an efficient member of that august body; has managed to get along harmoniously with her official associates; and has generally voted right on the grave and vital questions that are continually arising for judicial settlement by the Board. What more could one ask of a candidate for the important and highly responsible post known as School Board member?

The Winchester Star takes the voters of Woburn to task for not casting their ballots as a unit for Herbert S. Riley, a fellow townsman, for Senator, and intimates that they ought to be ashamed of themselves. The Star seems to overlook the fact that Mr. Riley received the full Republican vote of this city, and ran considerably ahead of Draper for Lieutenant Governor. Would our esteemed contemporary have had the whole Democratic party turn in, abandon their own candidate, and vote for Riley? That wouldn't have been good politics on their part. No, Mr. Riley had no reason to find fault with his Woburn vote, and finds none.

The Republican caucuses were admirably conducted, and good feelings prevailed.

When North Woburn Republicans get their backs up they make the wool fly: Blodgett, 93; Brackett, 62!

Refreshing showers moistened the earth last Monday night and Tuesday. They also, dampened the Thanksgiving turkey trade.

Rev. Frank I. Paradise of Medford is to preach at Trinity church at 7 p. m. next Sunday in the absence of Rector Beekman.

The ladies of the Unitarian Church have a notice in this paper which they would like to have the public read, reflect on, and act accordingly.

E. Prior may be found at 34½ Main street, Woburn, prepared to sell Real Estate of all descriptions—sell at Auction and does a general Fire Insurance business.

If, hereafter, our public schools are not absolutely free from all kinds of complaints and sickness, it will not be the fault of Dr. Stewart, the Medical Examiner of them. It's a great shame.

Last Saturday Mr. J. J. Grothe of this city shipped two electric road snowplows to Middletown, Conn., and is building a couple more for the same company there. The reputation of his plows is A1 everywhere.

No decision has been reached by the Postoffice Department at Washington in relation to the purchase of a site for the proposed government building in this city. A considerable time will probably elapse before the building is erected.

Judge E. F. Johnson and Rev. Henry S. Nash, D. D., who preached at Trinity church last Sunday evening, were classmates at Harvard University. The Judge announced his intention of listening to his Collegiate's sermon at Trinity.

Attention is respectfully asked for the professional card of Miss Emma Foodick in this paper. For several years this lady has been a popular and successful teacher of the instruments named, and never lacks for a liberal public patronage.

People who have funds on hand that they would like to invest to good advantage will do well to read an advertisement in this paper which treats of the sale of the National Bank block, and contains interesting particulars concerning the same.

The next lecture in the Burben Course is to be delivered by Morgan Wood whose subject is to be "The Average Man." The reputation of Mr. Wood as a platform orator warrants the statement that the lecture will be one worth going to hear.

Rev. Frederick W. Beekman, Rector of Trinity church, this city, left last Monday for a fortnight's tour in the South—the first vacation he has indulged in for the three years last past. He is to visit New Orleans and other Southern cities, and will return to his post of duty here on Dec. 15.

Mr. Everett P. Fox of this city was one of several individuals who were admitted to membership in the Congregational Club of Boston at a meeting held in Ford Hall last Monday evening. We have been informed that quite a number of Woburn Congregationalists belong to the Club.

John W. Johnson, Esq., made a bet that a certain aspirant for the Democratic nomination for Mayor would not get 35 votes at the caucuses last Friday night, and lost his money. Said certain aspirant received 88 of the 1200 ballots cast. This must have cost him for advertising more than $1 for each vote.

Our esteemed young friend, Lawyer W. Fred Davis, was handsomely shelved at the Republican caucuses last Saturday evening. He cast in his fortunes with the wrong candidate; pinned his faith to the wrong man; which may teach him that, in order to succeed politically, he must keep step with his party, and never bolt.

The Fair held by the ladies of Trinity church last week produced more net cash than any former one engineered by them. They cleared over 400, and were highly gratified with the liberal patronage accorded them by a generous public. Were it not for the women members of the church, our churches would get along.

Mr. W. H. Slater is engaged in painting pictures on a fine quality of leather, a few of which he has completed and privately exhibited. These are intended to be made into fancy pillows, or might serve in other kinds of room ornamentation with excellent effect; and it would not surprise us to learn that he had found a good market for his works of art.

The Elks are to hold memorial services in Lyceum Hall on Sunday evening, Dec. 2, at which several prominent speakers will be heard, among them Rev. Dr. Williams, pastor of the First Baptist church; and it is reported that Rev. Dr. Norton, pastor of the First Congregational church, will make an address. Of this, however, the JOURNAL has no reliable information.

One of the foolish habits that one runs up against about this time every year is that of postponing the buying of Christmas presents to the last minute and rushing in after all the best ones have been sold, and the stores are running over with anxious and disappointed people and fail to find what is wanted. Prudent and thoughtful folks will go to L. E. Hanson & Co.'s jewelry store and buy their Christmas gifts without further delay. They have a storeful of the best.

At an aggregate cost of $200,000 the Boston & Northern Street Railway Company have decided to make a considerable raise of wages paid to their motormen and conductors. As a sign of corporate prosperity and regard for the interests of the employees the news of the advance makes pleasant reading. And the young men deserve it. Their tasks are not easy ones, and the service they render the public, at least, so far as the local motormen and conductors are concerned, is of such a character as to demand good wages.

Last Saturday evening Miss M. Jennette Smith, daughter of C. Willard Smith, was honored with a genuine surprise party by a score of young associates who gathered at the home of the Smith family to celebrate the 17th anniversary of her birthday. In behalf of the visitors Miss Emily Godfrey presented to Miss Smith an elegant gold locket, which valuable present was gratefully accepted and gracefully acknowledged by the fair recipient. Refreshments were served, and a delightful evening spent in music and games.

Concerning the coming meetings of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. C. B. Strong, President of the Association, asks: "Would you be kind enough to say a word or two in regard to the coming series of services to be held by the Y. M. C. A. and supported by the various churches of the city in Lyceum Hall on the three Sunday afternoons preceding Christmas, and the three Sundays following, omitting Christmas Sunday on account of the various Christmas concerts on that day? The meetings are to be at 3:30 and will be under denominational, and the ablest speakers of the various denominations will be secured to give the addresses; the music will make an attractive feature. It is planned to have a large chorus to lead the singing each Sunday."

No surprise should be felt if long strides in the beautiful art of house decorations are witnessed in this city before snow flies, or not later than Christmas, at any rate. It will all come about through the influence of a lecture delivered before the Woman's Club by a professional, or, at least, a practical, decorator, last week, who set forth the beauties of parlor and kitchen embellishments in such glowing terms that not a woman could be found in the audience who had not, long before the address closed, made up her mind, unalterably, to go into the home furnishing business, regardless of expense, as soon as circumstances would allow. The lecture was profusely illustrated by beautiful black board sketches, to which the two decorated group pictures in colors furnished a capshaft that ought never to be forgotten by the devotees of high decorative art.

As Dec. 25 approaches people are beginning to think about Christmas presents, and visit places where they are kept for sale. Christmas is peculiarly the annual festival of good cheer and exchange of tokens of love and esteem. The stores are filling up with Christmas gift wares, and in some of them the wares are already on exhibition. We would call attention to the fact that Miss Nellie Ellis has at her home No. 11 Winn street a great variety of goods especially appropriate for holiday presents, many of which are unique and wholly unlike anything in the city. Nowhere else can such goods be found. Her rooms are open for trade every day, but a special invitation is hereby extended to the public to visit them on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, Dec. 11, 12, 13, for examination of her stock in trade, and purchase, if desired. Conspicuous in it are art products of rare beauty, of peculiar workmanship—"work in color, antique in effect"—in relief on pottery's clay, beautifully worked out by skilled artists. In this kind of art heads of many famous persons, buildings and scenes are found in Miss Ellis's large collection. Included in these are the Salem "witch house," and other ancient buildings in that old city. Lack of space compels us to forego further description of Miss Ellis's stock of beautiful pictures. The public will please remember that her rooms are open daily, and bear in mind the dates for special visits, then call and examine the handsome works of art.

A Year of Blood.

The year 1906 will be remembered in the home of F. N. Tackett, of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood; which blooded so many of the Tackett family, that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a fright brought me to the edge of death, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, with the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and as time has passed permanently cured." Guaranteed for Sore Lungs, Coughs and Colds, at McLaughlin & Dennison's drug store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

New Tests for Firemen.

The Civil Service Commissioners have made public new regulations concerning the examination of candidates for positions in the fire departments of cities outside of Boston, in which they make substantial changes in the examinations of both call and permanent firemen. The arithmetical examination has been dropped from the tests and in its place for the call firemen there will be one in experience and one as to physical ability and strength. Applicants for appointment as permanent firemen will be obliged to answer questions relating to State and city government, and must also have a certain knowledge of duties of firemen and local data, as well as the physical examination and strength test.

L. T. L.

The Loyal Temperance Legion met in the vestry of the First Baptist church Saturday afternoon. This year a new teacher has been secured, Mrs. Norton not being able to take charge. The following officers were elected for the year: President, Laura Chase; Vice-Presidents, Alice Hoskins, Frits Lawson, John Chase; Secretary, Alice Rosenquist; Treasurer, John Alexander; Collector, Master Burke; Pianist, Sigrid Lawson. The next meeting will be held Dec. 15, and we hope a large number will be present. The lady now in charge is State L. T. L. musical director and she knows the children will be much interested in the singing.

C. M. WARREN.

At the annual meeting of the Unitarian Society held last week the following officers were elected: Capt. P. A. Nickerson, Lewis Parkhurst, D. W. Pratt, John L. Ayer, Chas. C. Rogers and C. E. Miller, Standing Committee; Charles F. Dutch, Clerk; Edgar W. Metcalf, Treasurer; Mrs. George Everett Pratt, Chairman of Hospitality Committee; Mrs. S. H. Fosson, Mrs. John Symmes and Miss Alice J. Symmes, Home Charity Committee.

Dr. Harlow.

John M. Harlow was born at White Hart, N. Y., on July 18, 1818, and was a resident and leading physician of Woburn for about 45 years. Last Saturday he celebrated the anniversary of his birthday, an event which his friends took cognizance of.

He graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1844, and went to Cavendish, Vermont, where he practiced his profession about 15 years; came to Woburn in the early 60s, and soon won a large business, which was retained as long as he cared to attend to it.

Dr. Harlow has always taken an active part in the affairs of his adopted home, his knowledge, sound judgment, and integrity commanding the confidence and respect of his fellow citizens. The duties of the public offices he has held here have invariably been discharged with ability, delicacy, and an interpreter of the people. He was, for several years, President of the First National Bank of Woburn, and a Director of the Woburn National Bank, and is classed as a foremost financier today, notwithstanding his advanced age.

Dr. Harlow has been a sound consistent Republican ever since the birth of that party in 1854. Along he has not only advocated and voted to sustain Republican doctrine, but on any proper call for his services he has never failed in thrusting his hand deep into his pocket to give money cheerfully to respond to it. He has represented his District in the State Senate two terms, and acted as a member of the Council of the Governor's Council; for many years a Trustee of the Massachusetts General Hospital, and a generous contributor to its treasury; and other posts of honor and responsibility have, one time and another, been filled by him.

No citizen of Woburn is more highly respected, or thought more of, than Dr. or John M. Harlow. He has always been able to count on a host of good friends, and the list will meet with diminishing as the future anniversaries roll along, which, here's hoping, may be many and happy.

Republican Caucuses.

The caucuses held last Saturday evening, Nov. 24, by the Republicans, were unusually well attended. The whole number of ballots cast for Mayor was 653, of which each Ward gave its proportionate share. The result proved that solid work had been done. The large attendance proved the ability and disposition of Republicans to do things when they set about it.

William E. Blodgett was nominated for Mayor, carrying 5 of the 10 wards, losing 1 and 7 only by the worst shave. The vote stood:

Blodgett - - - - - 408
Brackett - - - - - 245

The candidates for Aldermen-at-Large elected were: H. L. Andrews, D. W. Bond, F. J. Brown, G. W. Buchanan, C. H. Jaquith, B. H. Nichols, P. T. Poole, J. R. Wood.

Michael J. Kennedy for the Board of Public Works, had no opposition.

The successful candidates for the School Board were: Grace L. Norris, Samuel W. Mendum, Arthur H. Lincoff.

The Ward Aldermen nominated were: Ward 1, R. Carlie Duncan; Ward 2, John S. Jaquith; Ward 3, Harry H. West; Ward 4, John M. Wallace; Ward 5, Thomas McCarthy; Ward 6, Chauncey L. Brown; Ward 7, John A. Porter.

Literary Notices.

The Christmas McCLECKE contains some of the most varied, picturesque, and striking material which the magazine has ever gathered together in a single number. Perhaps the most interesting single feature is an editorial article in which a life of Mary Baker G. Eddy and a history of Christian Science are announced to begin in January. Christian Science is a movement on which all eyes are turned to day, and the announcement that a true history of this great romantic movement and its leader is forthcoming, marks an excellent stroke of magazine policy. Another chapter of the Carl Schurz Reminiscences recalls his first journey to the new crusade West, in visit to London, and his first hearing of Jenny Lind and of Wagner—a remarkable musical experience described with great poetry of feeling. Lincoln Steffens relates the story of Judge Lindsey's splendid triumph in Denver, and C. P. Connolly tells how the Clark men failed in their attempt to handle the Supreme Court of Montana, and of the memorable scenes at the investigation of Clark's election in Washington. Other papers are Little Bo Peep, Clancy of the Jack-Pot, On the Ridge, Zenith, Lilly-Ann, Winter Sunrise, Salutation to Russia. This is one of McCLECKE's strong art numbers. The color frontispiece, from a painting by de Ivanoff, is an extremely dramatic conception, executed with great power. The cover design, a richly decorative Christmas piece, is by Blenden Campbell.

Sear to Death.

A stranger, a Norwegian by birth, who landed in this country last week, and Daniel Sullivan, narrowly escaped asphyxiation by illuminating gas Friday morning at the Hotel Northern, Wakefield. Late Thursday night the stranger applied for lodging, and was shown to his room and told how to turn off the gas.

After 5 o'clock in the morning Sullivan came downstairs and told Mr. Mahoney there was a strong odor of gas in the room. Upon investigation, the gas jet was found turned on full force in the Norwegian's room. Mahoney shut it off and pulled him from his bed out into the air.

The fact that there was a register in the ceiling of the stranger's room and that the windows of Sullivan's room were wide open undoubtedly saved both of their lives. Through an interpreter it was learned the Norwegian got up in the night and turned on the gas. Why it did not light he could not understand, so he went back to bed, leaving the gas turned on.

THE ELECTRIC HEATING PAD.

To relieve pain, to counteract a chill, to warm a cold bed, or cold extremities, a rubber hot water bag is pretty good, but the ELECTRIC HEATING PAD is better—best. The electric heating pad never burns, never grows cold while you keep the current on, and there's nothing about it to leak. It is ready for immediate use wherever the electric light has been introduced.

Have you learned to be light-wise?

Two Thousand

Dollars Reward

By C. B. LEWIS

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastman

Had you asked any inhabitant of the village of Glendale over ten years of age about the widow Clifton and her daughter Bessie you would have received the following summary:

"Been a widow several years; husband didn't leave her much; house and lot are mortgaged for $15,000, and they are ever going to pay it off I can't see. They used to be stuck up, but have had to come down; widow says and Bessie gives painting and music lessons. Some folks say that the girl expects to marry a rich man, but she'll die of old age first. She may be good looking, but what does a rich man want with a poor girl?"

It was true that Bessie gave lessons, as stated, and that dresses were made in the house. There were no relatives to come to their financial assistance when the husband and father died, and the mother and daughter had to work or starve. But for the mortgage they could have pulled along fairly well. It was their horror. They knew they never could pay it off. It was the thing that was driving them so near the value of the village house and lot that if any one bought the place there would be very little left over and above.

Bessie had an artistic nature and had taken some lessons in drawing and painting, but she knew that her work would not stand criticism beyond a certain point. She had been going into the city twice a week to get beyond this point, but amid all her lacrimations this was discouraging. It meant, with other things, a pinching of the family purse until mother and daughter were sometimes hungry and found nothing in the cupboard to satisfy the feeling.

On this particular day and date as Miss Bessie was returning home on the trolley after a rather discouraging day she read in the evening paper an account of a robbery at a first class train. The robber had got away with considerable money and a large amount of jewelry, and the victims had combined and offered a reward of $2,000 for his arrest. What purported to be a good description of the man was given.

"If I could come across that man!" sighed Bessie as she let the paper fall. "Fifteen hundred dollars of the money would pay off the mortgage, and the other five hundred would be put into the bank for my future.

I am sure I'll know him from this description, and if I got eyes on him he should not escape. I'd!"

And then she began to wonder whether he would surrender at discretion or make a fight for it. She was almost oblivious to the surroundings when a voice at her elbow said:

"Excuse me, miss. And a man sat down beside her. He was privileged to a resistance would begin.

"And you want the reward, of course. If this is your first detective work, let me compliment you on your perseverance. The plunder is, of course, in this satchel."

"It is, sir. Don't talk to me in this honeyed way, as I am on my guard.

The paper says you are sick, but you are fairly caught this time."

The benevolent robber chuckled in his throat. He did more. He laughed outright and seemed well pleased. It was three or four minutes before he said:

"As you are the only one who has the least suspicion of me, and as I do not care about a term in state prison, suppose we make a compromise. Let me hand you $2,000 and slip quietly off the car."

"You needn't try anything of that sort with me," answered the girl. "I want the money badly enough, but I don't propose to become your accessory."

"I was in hope you might see the thing in a different light. Are you quite certain to find an officer at Glendale?"

"Quite, sir."

"Then I suppose I shall have to submit quietly, but I don't see how I can for a man who has come through what I have to be arrested by a girl just as I was clear of all entanglements. I shall not seek to get away. It seems to be my fate."

He seemed to speak in honest tones, but Bessie did not relax her vigilance.

After this the girl and the robber stood in the car, and the girl looked at the robber and said:

FRIDAY, DEC. 7, 1906.

BLODGETT OR CONNOLLY.

The campaign has settled down to this: Either William E. Blodgett or James H. Connolly will be elected Mayor of Woburn next Tuesday. That is as sure as fate.

Neither Reade or Brackett stands the ghost of a chance of being elected. Not only so, but they will draw but a very small number of votes from the regular candidates—Blodgett and Connolly.

Do the voters of Woburn fully realize and appreciate this condition? Do the friends of good, clean, honest municipal administration want James H. Connolly for Mayor? It is for them to say. Think it over seriously, gentlemen.

William E. Blodgett requires no bolstering up—good wine needs no bush; he is known and respected for his intelligence, integrity, and pure moral character by the people of this city.

James H. Connolly is, also, known by everybody in Woburn. Do the friends and advocates of good local government want James H. Connolly for Mayor? Think it over.

One thing is certain, either William E. Blodgett or James H. Connolly will be elected Mayor of Woburn next Tuesday.

THE LICENSE QUESTION.

It is in the air that "No License" will carry the day in this city next Tuesday. The liquor dealers have as good as given up the fight. They do not hesitate to express the opinion that defeat at the polls stares them in the face—licensed liquor selling is doomed for this year, at least, they think.

Of course the dealers do not like the situation; the threatened danger to their trade is not relished; but they have but little courage for the contest, feeling that License will be snowed under on Dec. 11.

The only ray of hope the liquor dealers think they see emanates from the faint possibility of electing either Connolly or Reade for Mayor. This accounts for their efforts to defeat William E. Blodgett for Mayor.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

It is a good one from top to bottom. The reader is invited to compare it to the Democratic nominations. Range up alongside in the mind's eye the four candidates for Mayor and think over the qualifications of each for the office. Would any intelligent voter hesitate for a moment to choose William E. Blodgett? He outclasses the other three on every point necessary for the making of a competent Mayor. He will be elected next Tuesday.

While the reader is about it he is asked to glance over the Republican list of candidates for Aldermen, School Committee, and Board of Public Works. Again compare them with the Democratic candidates. Any difference? Select the best—the Republicans—and vote for them on Dec. 11.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

The Republicans held a large and enthusiastic meeting last Saturday evening to promote the success of their ticket for city officers at the election on Dec. 11.

The speakers were Mayor Linscott, President W. E. Blodgett of the City Council, Robert T. Wilson, F. E. Wetherell, Samuel W. Meudum, Jonathan E. George, F. Bean.

Chairman H. S. Riley of the Republican Ward and City Committee presided.

Not a man present had the least doubt that W. E. Blodgett would be elected Mayor by a handsome plurality.

CITY ELECTION.

The annual election of the City of Woburn is to be held on Tuesday, Dec. 11, from 6 A. M. to 4 P. M. A list of candidates appears in another column.

Every voter should go to the polls and deposit his ballot.

Lawyer W. Fred Davis sends a well written letter to the JOURNAL for publication on the subject of "bolting." It is all right from Mr. Davis's standpoint; but as it is, indirectly, at least, a boost for Brackett for Mayor, we must decline to print it.

If the Republicans had raked the city all over they could not have found a better candidate for the School Board than Samuel W. Meudum. He has been prominent in educational work all his life.

The female voters of this city ought to insure the election of Linscott, Norris and Meudum to the School Board by coming out on election day in full force.

The opinion prevails that Brackett will not get over 100 votes next Tuesday. A much smaller number would surprise nobody who is familiar with the situation.

W. D. Conn warrant machinist on the United States ship St. Louis, stationed at Philadelphia, came home to spend Thanksgiving with his mother. He returned to Philadelphia yesterday.

On Monday night the cold took a fresh grip and on Tuesday morning it was from a little below to 2 above zero, with a strong, piercing N. W. wind blowing. It was the coldest morning and roughest day of the season.

Mr. Fred W. Ruggles of the firm of Ruggles & Turbull, proprietors of Lookaway Inn at Pine Point, Maine, is on his annual visit to this city and receiving cordial greetings from his numerous friends and former neighbors here.

Capt. Edward E. Parker treats a subject of vital importance in his card this week, a subject that the public will do well to pay attention to and put into practice. For skill and care in this business no man anywhere goes ahead of Capt. Parker.

Clark T. Richardson died at the Soldiers' Home, Togus, Maine, on Nov. 28. He served in Co. G, 5th Regiment, Mass. Infantry in the Civil War, and was admitted to the Togus Home May 16, 1888. He was 75 years old at the time of his death.

Copeland & Bowser, leading dealers in holiday goods, have filled their spacious store with multitudinous wares especially designed for Christmas and New Year presents, and extend a hearty invitation to the public to drop in and take a good look at them. With such a stock as Copeland & Bowser have on hand there is no excuse for going to Boston for holiday presents.

Individuals and societies have responded nobly to appeals for aid for poor widow Annie Clancy who lost one of her hands in a machine at Ring & Mahoney's factory on Winn street lately. A handsome sum of money has been raised for her and her two children, which will be increased from the proceeds of a concert to be given for the purpose on Wednesday evening, Dec. 19.

Last Monday Mrs. Thomas P. Callahan, wife of overseer Callahan of the Merrimac Chemical Works, returned to the family home, 3 Jefferson Court, from a trip, with a Boston friend, to New York City and up the Hudson River, a favorite one with Woburn and Boston tourists. The journey and sightseeing were greatly enjoyed by Mrs. Callahan and her Boston traveling companion.

Mr. Fred A. Hartwell has always been quite proud of annually performing the feat of being the pioneer in utilizing the first snowstorm of the season for a sleighride. He has seldom, or never, failed to do so. To win the leadership again this winter Ernest tackled up "Moose" last Monday afternoon, handed his father into the sleigh, tucked up the buffalo robes, snapped the whip, and away they scudded over the thin coating of snow, rocks and electric rails, like whiteheads, and thus won the honor of again taking the first sleighride of the season.

Last Sunday was the coldest Dec. 2 that there is any record of in the last 18 years. After a slight snowfall Saturday night the mercury, in a few hours, dropped 36 degrees and at 6 a. m. Sunday morning the thermometer in this city registered from 2 to 8 degrees above zero. A high west wind prevailed all day, which intensified the severity of the cold and made things decidedly uncomfortable. At 8 a. m. Monday morning the Arctic conditions had yielded to a temperature of 32 above, which brought with it a snowstorm of quite a wintry aspect and severity.

There was no limit to the praise bestowed on the lecture delivered by Morgan Wood in the Barbours Course last Tuesday evening on "Where are we at?" It was a splendid production, given in the most pleasing style, and well calculated to bring forth the hearty applause it received at many points. A large and cultivated audience listened with great apparent delight to all the speaker said from beginning to end. The next lecture in the Course is to be delivered on Dec. 17 by Prof. John B. DeMotte. His subject will be announced on the stage by Mr. L. Waldo Thompson, Course Manager.

There was a 3-inch fall of snow early yesterday morning, Dec. 6, but a rain soon set in and carried it all off. No schools yesterday afternoon.

Winter struck this latitude in great form on Dec. 1, instant. If it continues after the present fashion, coal calculations will have to be revised.

Mrs. M. Frances Allen and Miss Alice Wren of Nashua, N. H., were guests of Mrs. Julia F. Parker and son Harry, of Church avenue last Sunday. Mrs. Allen is President of the Nashua Women's Club of Nashua.

Civil War Veteran William T. Kendall was the happy victim of a real surprise party last Wednesday evening, concocted and splendidly carried out by numerous friends of his. He was a good soldier, and deserved the honors paid him the other night.

Last Sunday evening, Dec. 2, Woburn Lodge, 908, of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks held their annual Memorial Services in Lyceum Hall, for which a comprehensive programme was arranged. The deceased members whose memory was honored were Thomas W. Kenney and Dennis D. Begley. Preceding the memorial exercises by the Lodge an address was delivered by Edward G. Brackett, Exalted Ruler, the same being followed by religious, literary and musical numbers, in which Rev. Dr. Williams of the First Baptist church participated. A large audience listened to the impressive exercises.

Numerous complaints of late suggest an enquiry by the JOURNAL, whether, or not, in the new contract with the Edison Illuminating Co. provision was made for lighting the streets during the dark hours in the morning when people are starting out to their early business? Last year the city authorities promised to include this service in the new contract: have they done it? Tailmen on Dick Carlton's first trip to Boston, before 6 a. m., and men and women going there to train every morning, complain—a very few indulge in profanity—of being obliged to wander in the dark, and stumble around and over things, in search of the R. R. station.

Hammond & Son Co., Incor., Mr. J. F. DeLand, General Manager, make an interesting statement in this issue of the JOURNAL which the public will do well to peruse with care. For many years the clothing and gentlemen's furnishing goods house under consideration has been the leading one in Woburn, and still maintains its supremacy as a successful business establishment. It is selling a great many goods this winter and is prosperous and happy. Manager DeLand wants to see everybody else happy at the coming yuletide, and to that end Hammond & Son Co. are selling all kinds of goods in their line at prices lower than ever before offered in this city.

Our esteemed contemporary, The Times, is a zealous and persistent advocate of the purchase of the Littlefield estate on Pleasant street for the proposed new Government building, for which, it earnestly hopes, Congress will increase the appropriation of $12,000. Chairman Bartholomew of the House Committee on Public Buildings informed the Boston people a few days since that the appropriation for public buildings, voted by the last session of the present Congress, would not be increased a farthing, and what he says goes, Senator Lodge to the contrary, notwithstanding. This knocks in the head the movement of The Times to secure more money with which to buy the Littlefield lot.

There will be a service at the Old Ladies' Home Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. H. B. Williams D. D.

A copy of the Sunday Democrat of New York City received at this office a few days ago contained a notice of the good work done there at the November election by Mr. Henry E. O'Brien, who was Chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee of the 25th N. Y. District, and the victory won mainly by it. Mr. O'Brien was formerly a resident of Woburn, where many of the same name still live, but the most of them, we are sorry to say, still stick to the Democratic party. Henry, however, is all right politically.

Miss Marie Gregory Conway, daughter of the late Dr. James H. Conway of Woburn, is spending the winter in Kingston, Jamaica. During the month of September she was the guest of Mrs. Wesley Bourke and family at their office plantation in Jamaica. She has also been the guest of Lady Swettenham since her arrival in Jamaica. On Nov. 9, by special invitation, she attended the Ball given in the Governor General's palace in honor of King Edward's birthday. She wore a Princess gown of silver cloth lined with chiffon taffeta. Marie's mother expects to join her in Jamaica in the early part of the coming year.

Mr. Edward F. Bryant of Pullman, Illinois, a flourishing suburb of Chicago, the seat of the vast industries of the Pullman of sleeping car fame, ate his Thanksgiving dinner this year with father and mother Bryant at their home on Salem street, and that he had a good one and enjoyed it does not admit of a shadow of a doubt. If we heard correctly, it was the first Thanksgiving dinner Edward had taken with his parents for 21 years, although, of course, he has made frequent visits to their home during his long residence in Chicago. From here Mr. Bryant went to Hanover, N. H., to visit his son, who is a Freshman in Dartmouth College there. He has been highly prosperous since settling in the West.

It is gratifying to observe that "afternoon teas," after a protracted season of innocuous desuetude, have reappeared on the social calendar and bid fair to become a prominent and highly fashionable pastime this winter. It seems but a short span of years ago when pink and other colored teas were the all the go; when ladies vied with each other in the artistic decorations of their rooms; when frappa was on every society tongue; and it was considered a distinguished honor to be selected to "pour," and all that; but, like every mundane thing, the fashion died out, only to be succeeded by "bridge," and, as the fashions of fashion, we repeat, are the fashions of fashion, we repeat, however, to be able to record the revival of afternoon teas, colored or plain, and the JOURNAL will do all that lies in its power to create and advance interest in them.

The first of a series of Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon meetings was held in Lyceum Hall at 3:30 p. m. last Sabbath Day, and proved to be a success from every point of view. Between 300 and 400 people were present. Mr. C. Bertrand Strout, President of the Y. M. C. A., presided and carried the services through in smooth and regular order. The exercises consisted of reading of the Word by Stephen A. Norton, D. D., pastor of the First Congregational church; prayer by Rev. E. W. Vandermark, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church; an able discourse on "Religion" by Rev. Frank S. Hunsell, pastor of the Reading Congregational church; and fine singing by a chorus of 50 voices. A commendable interest in the meeting and its objects was manifested by the audience. The series is to be extended through December and January every Sunday afternoon, except Dec. 23. The meetings deserve encouragement and support at the hands of the public, for their direction, and President Strout deserves credit for starting and conducting them.

Long Tennessee Fight. For twenty years W. L. Rawls, of Belle, Tenn., fought nasal catarrh. Capt. John E. Tidd.

JOHN EDGELL TIDD died suddenly in the reporters' room of the Middlesex County Courthouse at East Cambridge on Thursday, Dec. 6, 1906, where he arrived shortly before, from his home in this city, to attend to his duties as Captain of the 1st Massachusetts Cavalry. He was not wholly unexpected. After spending the summer at the seaside he returned with apparently improved health and in early fall resumed his official work in the Cavalry. He continued in a feeble condition, however, and died in his chair while an attendant was temporarily out of the room.

John E. Tidd was born in Woburn on Sept. 7, 1833, and always made his home here. On July 4, 1861, when less than 28 years old, he enlisted for 30 days in Co. G, 5th Mass. Volunteers, and was in the battle of Ball Run. He re-enlisted in Co. B, 32nd Mass. Regt., as Sergeant, and was mustered into service Oct. 30, 1861.

He was promoted to First Sergeant Sept. 1, 1862, to Second Lieutenant, Feb. 6, 1863 and mustered out Jan. 5, 1864 at the end of his three years' enlistment. He re-enlisted and was wounded May 10, 1864. He received his appointment as Lieutenant, Nov. 17, 1864 and his Captaincy, Nov. 17, 1864. He was discharged from the service at the close of his term of service ending June 25, 1865.

Soon after the close of the Civil War he was appointed a member of the State Police, and was Chief of Police of Woburn in 1878. He was Deputy Sheriff and a Court Officer at the time of his death.

He was Past Commander of Post 161, G. A. R., and a member of the Loyal Legion of Massachusetts. Mr. Tidd was a member of the First Baptist Church of Woburn, and was a member of the Woburn Lodge, F. and A. M., 32nd Mass. Chapter, and a member of the Woburn Chapter, R. A. M., and other prominent organizations. Major Ambrose Bancroft, Lt. Col. Cyrus Fay and Warren F. Taylor, were his fellow soldiers in Co. B, 32d Mass. Regt.

Mr. Tidd married Ann Bulfinch July 19, 1862. She died Dec. 11, 1890. On June 27, 1893 he was married to Miss Mary E. Tidd, of Boston. She survives his wife who leaves one sister, Mrs. George C. Nichols of Pleasant street and a son, John E. Tidd, Jr., who is a graduate of the Harvard Law School.

The funeral is to be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Trinity church.

Edward H. Lounsbury. The subject of this notice died at the residence of Dr. C. C. Lane, 36 Pleasant street, this city, at 8 o'clock Monday afternoon, Dec. 3, 1906, after an illness of a few days. He was the cause of his death being inflammation of the kidneys. The funeral was held yesterday at 10 o'clock at the residence of Dr. C. C. Lane, 36 Pleasant street, at West Medford.

He was born in Cambridge, son of Charles and Mary Lounsbury, both of Cambridge. The family came here in Edward's boyhood. He was graduated from the High School class of 79, from Harvard University in '83 and several years later from the Harvard Law School. From 1880-81 he was Principal of the Cummings Grammar School.

In 1892 he was Clerk of the Common Council, and in 1893 he was elected to the term of David F. Moreland in January, '93, and a month later was elected to that office for a year. As City Clerk he was a member of the Board of Registrars of Voters, and served on the commission on revision of ordinances.

Shortly after graduation from the Law School he was admitted to the Suffolk Bar and opened offices in Boston, where he has since practiced his profession. Mr. Lounsbury was the first Commander of Co. C, Winn Camp 68, S. O. F., was advanced to the position of Judge Advocate General of the National Guard, and served as Commander of the Massachusetts Department of the Order. He was a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association, and the Massachusetts Bar Association, and the Massachusetts Bar Association.

He is survived by a sister, Harriet Lounsbury of Cambridge, and two brothers, Francis J. of Cambridge and Harry L. of West Medford.

A Resolute Editor. Thomas C. Quinn, the energetic editor of the Daily News, very naturally takes issue with Richard Croker, who admitted to him as Senator Quinn, and who claimed that he had befriended him when a candidate for city office. Thomas C. Quinn was never a candidate for elective office. He has devoted time, energy and influence to the election of other Democrats to office, a fact which Richard Croker should be aware of, as he is an old reader of the Daily News and owes much of his success in past years to the vigorous support of the Daily News in times when Tammany Hall was without any other newspaper.

"Tommy." Quinn was born and bred in Woburn, and when a lad learned the art of printing with "Mark the Perfect Man" who edited the Woburn Democrat, therefore, the perusal of such items as above pleases us, barring "Tommy's" politics, which we hope, he will outgrow.—ED. JOURNAL.

New Cure for Epilepsy. J. B. Waterman, of Watertown, O., writes: "My daughter, Mary, afflicted for years with epilepsy, was cured by Dr. King's New Life Pills. She has not had an attack for over two years." Best body cleansers and life giving tonic, pills on earth. 25c at McLaughlin & Dennison's drug store.

Overcome by Gas. William H. Perkes, 23 years old, a lodger at 39 Carver street, Boston, is at the City Hospital suffering from gas poisoning, but is expected to recover. About 6:30 this morning another lodger in the house was awakened by the smell of gas and traced the odor to Perkes' room. Forcing an entrance, he found the man unconscious.

As he was being taken from the house Perkes revived enough to say that the matter was an accident.

CASTLE SQUARE. Few merrier plays have been written than "Cousin Kate," which is to be played at the Castle Square next week. First played in this country by Ethel Barrymore, it won an instant success by its delicious comedy, its quaint characters, and its poignant scenes, and many have been the applications for its revival at the Castle Square Theatre. The plot tells a sprightly tale of romance and love and there is not a movement in its three acts when the audience can lose its interest or refrain from gentle smiles and hearty laughter. The following week will bring a revival of Sheri, day's old English comedy, "The Diva," and during Christmas the long expected production of William Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" will be given.

Trolley Trips.

"What is the best trolley trip that you have taken over the lines of the Boston & Northern Old Colony St. Ry. Co.?" The best answer to this question is furnished by the Passenger Department of these companies which receive a cash prize of $25, the second best of $10, and the third best of $5. This is the substance of an interesting contest announced by the November issue of the Tri-State Journal, the monthly publication issued by this department.

It is stated that it is realized that the nearly 900 miles of track of the two systems pass through some of the most beautiful and interesting scenery and historical places in the country and that thousands of people have enjoyed trips through these scenes. The department now asks that they put some of their most interesting experiences on paper. The department wishes to know which, in the popular mind, are generally considered to be the most delightful trips which it is possible to take on these lines, understanding that different people have different ideas. This contest will close March 1 and is not to be judged solely on literary merit. Everybody except employees of these two companies is eligible to enter.

The announcement states that people of trained literary ability will not necessarily have any advantage over those who have not had such experience. It is for the old and young, every body. The contest offers a chance for the observant, those who can see, appreciate what they see and can tell about it in plain, straight forward English. The entries are limited to 120 words in length. One contestant may enter as many articles as desired. They are to be sent to the Passenger Department of the Boston & Northern Old Colony St. Ry. Co., at 309 Washington St., Boston, or to the Passenger Department of the Tri-State Journal, which may be secured on application to the Passenger Department, as well as special information concerning it desired.

Burlington.

One of the aged and most estimable women in this town, Mrs. Rachel P. Prouty, wife of Mr. Augustus Prouty, died peacefully away at her home on Thanksgiving day afternoon in the presence of her family. After a busy day on Wednesday preparing for the Thanksgiving festival she retired to bed in her usual health, but at 3:30 o'clock Thursday morning was stricken by a paralytic shock, from which she did not recover, but died 11 hours later, aged 80 years and 4 months.

Mrs. Prouty was a Christian, a good neighbor, and kind friend. She and her now sorely bereaved husband, natives of Maine, settled on a farm in this town about 40 years ago, and have ever since lived quiet peaceful lives, respected and esteemed by all who knew them. Besides the husband, two children, Edgar Prouty of Rockland, Mass., and Mrs. H. Staples of Bar Harbor, and her grandchildren, deeply mourn the loss they have sustained in the death of this good woman.

The funeral, held at the church Monday afternoon, was generally attended by neighbors and friends of the family. The Rev. Tripp of Woburn had charge of it.

Unless all signs fail the clergymen of this town are going to receive a large number of embroidered slippers, neckties, earmuffs, lounging jackets, New Testaments, and poetry, for Christmas presents. The womenfolk are already busily engaged in getting the things ready for delivery on Christmas Eve.

The housewives of this town have tough times in finding and retaining kitchenmaids. The female help demand the highest kind of wages; limit their duties to a minimum; must have about every afternoon and evening to themselves and their beaux; detest children; and will "take no sass" from the mistress. COCHINEAL.

The Way the Tiny Insects Live and How They Are Gathered.

Merry millions of little beetles support the vast cochineal industries. Where the tiny cochineal insect comes from is something of a mystery, but he does come wherever the nopal plant grows and for a long time was thought to be a seed or a flower of the plant. The living female insect is twice as large as the male, weighs one-tenth of a grain and loses much weight in drying, so that 70,000 are needed to make one pound. During the rainy season many millions of the creatures are drowned or washed off the plants, so that when the long dry summer comes there are but a few survivors on each plant. But these multiply so rapidly that before long the plants are covered. The last act of the female's life is to deposit a large number of eggs, on which her dead body rests until the sun until the little ones emerge. In about six weeks after the beginning of the dry season comes the first harvest. The plantations laborers make the most of the sunny and hot weather and go over the entire plant, sweeping the creatures into a bag. They then are killed by immersion in hot water, by exposure to steam or by drying in hot ovens. The hot water or steam makes a dark reddish brown or black cochineal. The hot ovens make them a red gray hue or silver cochineal. The females outnumber the males by at least 200 to 1, a fortunate fact for the planter, since the males are of no use to him whatever.

They are not an integral part of the life of the city.

The cab is an integral part of New York life. Venice without the gondola was as unthinkable as a woman without hair. No little of London's compelling charm is in its swift rolling hansom. These things we know. But one can't think of New York in terms of cabs. Once upon a time I was in exile

THE WILD BALSAM APPLE.

Its Seed Holders Are Suggestive of Race Purges.

In the brooks of autumn in certain places many little lacelike things may be seen drifting along with the current or stranded by the shore. They are the inner coats or bodies of the wild balsam apple (Ribes cereum).

These green prickly bags of the balsam apple itself begin to form in late summer, and by autumn it has withered and added to a pale straw color. We may see the trailing vines with their shrunken pods decorating the brookside bushes far into the winter. The outer coat of the pod gradually rots away, and the inner bag or seed carrier is now released and exposed as a delicate, webby network of tough fibers. A thin skin or membrane fills up the space between these meshes, but that also falls away through the action of water and the winter storms until only the ball-like tissue of the "pump" is left. These little purses, being extremely light and buoyant, float far and wide over the submerged swamp lands in late autumn, carrying the seeds with them and so planting the vine in new situations. If, however, we take these seeds home with us and plant them there, Mother Earth will suitably reward us in the following year with vines of our own. They will spring up and spread rapidly until all the stone walls and garden fences are decorated with the tracery of their stems and star shaped leaves. - St. Nicholas.

GOLD AND THE SEA.

Why the Metal Is Shipped in Bars Rather Than in Coins.

"When the banks ship gold across the Atlantic," said a banker, "they prefer to ship it in bars rather than in coin. It loses less that way."

"Yes, sir. If $1,000,000 in gold coins is shipped across the sea it is only $999,800 on its arrival. It loses from twelve to fifteen ounces, about $200, through abrasion, through knocking about with the motion of the waves. The sea makes gold lost gold, you see, the same as it does human beings. Gold bars lose less. In fine weather they will only lose about $100 to each million. In the ugliest weather they don't lose over $150, whereas in like conditions gold coins have been known to lose $300. As gold shipments of $1,000,000 often occur, to make these shipments in gold bars instead of gold coin is a saving of $1,000 or more. It is odd to think when you cross in one of those gold lined ships that every wave that hits the hull clips off 10 to 15 cents from its golden cargo." - Philadelphia Bulletin.

Cruel, but Necessary.

The Eskimos dread the winter and take early precautions to provide against famine. As the season approaches the great herds of reindeer migrate southward, and the walrus or the seal are all that remain for food. When an in wind is blowing the walrus is easily found on the outer edge of the ice packs. When it is blowing off the shore, however, the ice packs sail out to sea with the walrus on them. The natives then class their numbers in a list from the strongest to the weakest. The food that is in store is divided up, the weakest having the smallest quantity, the strongest the largest. Thus the mightiest hunters have strength to provide for the others. It is a cruel system, but nevertheless a necessary one. If all were weak, all would die; if some are strong, they will save many of the weak.

The Largest Pipe.

What is described as the largest pipe in the world is valued at $8,000 and is counted as one of the most remarkable pieces of carving in existence. The pipe is made of one solid piece of meerschaum and represents the landing of Columbus. There are twenty-four figures in the scene, each four inches high. The carver who executed the masterpiece is dead, and as the demand for this sort of work has nearly died out, it is practically impossible to find a man to duplicate it. - London Telegraph.

Month Ulcers.

Little ulcers that appear in the month from time to time are exceedingly annoying and painful. An old fashioned household remedy is alum, the powder or crystals being applied to the yellow center. But this is a bitter, nasty dose. A physician has prescribed the use of a saturated solution of potassium chlorate, applied every two hours. "Saturated solution" means as much potassium chlorate as can be dissolved in a certain amount of water.

Lepers and the Law.

The Norman-English laws enacted that a leper had neither power to sue in any court nor to inherit property. During his lifetime he was permitted to enjoy the usufruct of any property in his possession at the time he was "found guilty," so to speak, of leprosy, but all rights of disposition over it he lost.

Autobiography of a Family Man.

I was born in New York and went to Boston to be born again. For the first twenty-one years of my life I was known as the son of my mother, for the next thirty as the husband of my wife and for the last ten years as the father of my daughter. I claim, therefore, to be a family man. - Independent.

Age and Years.

The man of forty must not think himself old. He is only beginning really to live. A man's usefulness is gone only when he ceases to grow. Age is not a matter of increasing years so much as of waning enthusiasm. - Milwaukee Journal.

Measures.

Teacher-Now, you have all studied about liquid measure, and I think you know it. Johnny, you may now tell me what measure treats of inches, feet and yards. Johnny-Tape measure, teacher.

The Lobster.

"Well," said the first lobster in a bored tone, "what are you going to do now?"

"Get dressed for dinner," the second lobster answered, yawning.

A present joy is worth a thousand past sorrows or future tips. - State Journal.

Two Thoughts.

"I want a business suit now," said Slopas. "I was thinking of something in the way of a small plain."

"And I," replied the tailor, "can't help thinking of something in the way of a small check." - Philadelphia Ledger.

The Hotel Nut.

Chewing the hotel nut in Stiam, being a common habit, at every little distance as you go through the bazaar of Bangkok may be seen petty merchants busy making and selling the preparation on universally masticated. The leaves in which the prepared mixture is wrapped are from a vine known as the chavien betel. The nut is from the arched betel palm, which reaches a height of about sixty feet, whose branches bear several large bunches of units which harden and rot when they ripen and which resemble somewhat the bunches of fruit on the date bearing palm. The dealers cut up their green leaves into the proper triangular form, crack the units and with wooden spatulas work the tumeric stained juice into a paste. It is amusing to see how skillfully they form the pieces of green leaf into pointed, cone shaped cups, into each one of which they place a portion of the ingredients.

Turks and Meerschaum.

According to the best authorities upon the subject, the idea of using white tale in the manufacture of pipes is of comparatively recent date compared with the age of the habit of smoking, and what is still more curious is the fact that in the oriental countries which produce white tale, or meerschaum, as it is called, and where the use of tobacco forms part of the education of the faithful the people never dream of making this substance into pipes. They make bowls and goblets of it, but no pipes. It may be that the long pipe stems which allow the smoke to cool and lose its acridity before reaching the mouth of the smoker, the oriental smoker quite indifferent in regard to the quality of the bowl. At all events, one never sees a Turk with a meerschaum pipe.

Enormous Lifting Power.

The shellfish limpet pulls 1,854 times its own weight when in the air and about double when measured in the water. Fleas pull 1,333 times their own dead weight. The Mediterranean mussel, Mytilus edulis, can exert a pulling power equal to 2,071 times the weight of its own body. So great is the power possessed by the oyster that to open it a force equal to 1,519.5 times the weight of its shellfish body is required. If the limpet being possessed strength are great in proportion as that of these shellfish the average man would be able to lift the enormous weight of 2,070,000 pounds, pulling in the same degree as the limpet. And if the limpet pulled the same proportionate degree on the oyster he would sustain a weight of no less than 3,105,500 pounds.

Two Poor Ones.

During one of Edwin Forrest's engagements in Boston a poor fellow called several times to see the great actor at the old Whitcomb House. Each time he brought a picture which he had painted. He finally left it with a note stating that he was in needy circumstances, and that he would be glad to take the wrapping from the picture. It proved to be a painting of himself as Spartacus. Forrest gazed upon it a moment and then ejaculated to the clerk: "Give him $10. If he is as poor as his picture, he must be on the point of starvation."

Literary Notices.

The December NATIONAL, from the cover, which is ornamented by one of Manning's striking heads, to the last page of the magazine, is attractive, and its contents interesting. The frontispiece is a cartoon, "The Skating Season Has Opened, and a half-tone of the U. S. Battleship Louisiana. Affairs at Washington," by Joe Mitchell Chapple, is replete with those interesting things which everyone wants to know about the National Capital. The "Bright Side" of Packaging, by Mary Humphrey, dispels many illusions and shows that the great institutions and homes of this community are grossly maligned by authors who have said that they are unable to find one ray of sunshine to brighten the lives of these people, save such as they are able to get out of darkness. The Editor of the NATIONAL tells of the Ancient Order of Happy Habits, and also contributes an interesting descriptive article, "Through the Golden West. There is an abundance of fiction and verse including A Bit of Mistletoe, Half and Half, From the Sea to Yuletide, by Mabel Ward Cameron. A half dozen other stories and the variety of material published in the NATIONAL makes up a Christmas number that ensures a welcome in every household.

WINCHESTER.

The team of C. H. Symmes indulged in a disastrous runaway a few days ago.

Theodore C. Hurd, Esq., Clerk of the Middlesex County Superior Court, has gone to Jamaica for a much needed rest from his official work. He was accompanied by his son, Minot.

Mrs. Congressman S. W. McCall and daughters Ruth, Catherine and Margaret are to spend the next several months in Rome, Italy. The Congressman and son Hal are to join them somewhere in Europe about July, 1907. Summer, the oldest son, has settled down to the practice of law in Chicago.

Last week William Parkman Lodge of Free Masons elected the following officers: Worshipful Master, Fred M. Symmes; Senior Warden, Frank F. Carpenter; Junior Warden, George F. Edgott; Treasurer, George A. Burton; Secretary, William F. Fitch; Senior Deacon, Albert D. Rogers; Junior Deacon, Perry W. Witherell; Chaplain, Rev. William I. Lawrence.

The new officers of the Winchester Council K. of C. are: Dr. Charles F. McCarthy, G. K.; Frank E. Rogers, D. G. K.; Dennis F. Foley, S. E.; Daniel J. Daly, L. E.; Thomas J. Boyle, Sec.; John J. Everybody is getting ready for "Merry Christmas" and a joyous season is confidently expected. The stores and shops here are bristling and running over with beautiful and useful holiday presents, and our people are buying them. No need of going to Boston for Christmas gift goods. Mistletoe and holly, and Christmas bells, and green wreaths, and other holiday attractions adorn the windows of the town, and all is as "merry as marriage bells."

ELECTRICITY.

In making up your list of Christmas presents don't forget to consider the electric heating pad. It is effective in relieving pain, or in warming cold extremities, or a cold bed. It is never too hot, it never grows cold till you turn off the current, and there's nothing about it to leak.

Have you learned to be light-wise?

Our Sales Agent can tell you lots of things worth knowing about electricity, and its application in the household. He will respond quickly if you write him, or call, or telephone "Oxford 1150, Collect."

FRIDAY, DEC. 28, 1906

INAUGURATION DAY.

On Monday afternoon, January 7, 1907, Woburn's city administration will be inducted into office at the City Hall with the usual pomp and ceremony. These consist of prayer; administering oaths of office; message of new Mayor.

It has always seemed to us that the time for delivery of the message should be at the close, instead of the inauguration, of the administration. Otherwise, the act is put before the horse. In the one case it is promising to do things that are seldom realized; in the other, a history is given of what has actually been done. But custom often makes law.

The inauguration of a city administration is an important event. The ceremonies are almost always attended by crowds of people—the female sex often predominating. A considerable contingent of the audience is made up of those who go to criticize the message of the Mayor. These generally store things in their memory to be used against the Mayor later in the year.

If favorable weather prevails, Mayor Blodgett will probably have a good audience to talk to in City Hall.

Before Mayor Lincoln sent his message to the City Council last week, which set forth many alleged shortcomings of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co., and asked for an Aldermanic committee to investigate and remedy the same, a large majority of the inhabitants of Woburn entertained the idea that the Co. were treating this community very well indeed in the matter of transportation over their several electric lines. With 10 cent fare to Boston; 15 minute trips; one hour from our City Hall to the State House; 2 lines to Lowell; 15 cent fare; 5 cents to Stoneham, Reading, Wakefield, etc., the opinion was often expressed that this was doing the liberal thing by us. Larger, finer, better heated, or more comfortable cars are run by no Company in the State than Woburn is furnished with; and to demand more than this, especially as the company are doing all in their power to accommodate the public, seems to be unreasonable. That some waits occur at turnouts are inevitable, and must be until the lines are double-tracked. But try ever so hard, the Co. will find it impossible to please every patron of their admirably conducted service.

Last Saturday evening the Beacon Society of Boston held its 25th annual election and anti-Christmas jubilation at the New Algonquin Club which proved to be one of the merriest and most enjoyable of its many gatherings. The Beacon is a leading Boston Club composed of gentlemen of wealth and elegant leisure, and is prominent in the Hub's social life. Our esteemed friend, Hon. Joshua B. Holden, who, the Boston Sunday papers said, is one of the leading lights of the Beacon Society, was re-elected its Secretary. His and the choice of other officers being followed by a highly entertaining talk on "Life in Maine Woods," entitled "Some Journeys with an Indian," by Prof. William L. Underwood, the scenes of his story being laid along the St. Croix River and Schoodic Lakes, near the New Brunswick boundary line. A beautiful thing connected with the dinner was the menu card; and another, a handsome case for the ices; both furnished by Secretary Holden, who has a fine taste for such artistic creations.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company have issued a 40-page pamphlet, written by C. W. Anderson, entitled "Telephone Competition in the Middle West, and its Lesson for New England," which gives a clear exposition and insight of the subject, and demonstrates clearly that the system of Western competition, if adopted in New England, would prove highly disadvantageous to the public. It is a publication worthy of careful study.

We hear that there are to be but few, if any, changes at City Hall on and after Jan. 1. In the hands of the present incumbents public business has moved along smoothly, and but little, or no, fault has been heard concerning the administration of affairs in the various Departments. Of course, nobody knows for a dead certainty what the new Mayor and Council will do; but the opinion prevails that they are disposed to let well enough alone.

Sentiment, so far as heard from, seems to indicate the election of Ald. Fred J. Brown to be President of the incoming City Council. The new Board, composed chiefly of the present one, understand and appreciate his qualifications for the position and are disposed to recognize him by giving him the President's chair and gavel.

We gratefully acknowledge the receipt of a communication from Governor Guild in which he says: "The Governor requests the honor of your presence at the Inauguration Ceremony on Thursday, January the third, 1907, at twelve o'clock, State House Boston."

In its issue of Dec. 20, The Watchman, the organ of the Calvinist Baptist denomination, mentioned the election of Mr. W. E. Blodgett to the office of Mayor of Woburn, and had a good word to say concerning him. It also, stated that he is a brother of Chief Justice Blodgett of Rhode Island.

It was a "White Christmas," all right.
The Christmas services at Trinity church were fine.

—Next Tuesday is New Year Day, chiefly noted for the practice of "swearing off."

—The snow which fell profusely all Tuesday forenoon improved the sleighing.
—Pleasing and profitable Christmas exercises were held in the public schools last Friday.

—Have readers of the JOURNAL noticed that the days have increased in length two minutes?
—If December weather continues through January no one need fear an ice famine next summer.

—The Charitable Society, Alliance Branch, of the Unitarian church, are to hold their next meeting on Jan. 3.
—Patrick Hickey was struck and severely injured by an electric car near Winn and Bedford streets the other day.

—Good sleighing prevails, and owners of fast horses are making much of it. So are the boys and girls by sliding down hills.
—There are 12 days of Christmas, each one ruling the weather of the 12 months of the year following.

—Mr. Frank P. Buchanan has been elected General Manager of a street railway at Key West, Florida, where he and Mrs. Buchanan are to make their home.
—The Merrimack Chemical Works is a hive of industry. An immense increase of business makes additional buildings necessary some of which are being erected.

—E. Prior may be found at 34½ Main street, Woburn, prepared to sell Real Estate of all descriptions—sell at Auction and does a general Fire Insurance business.

—James Linnell, Manager of Linnell's Market, said his stock of turkeys for Christmas, although much larger than for Thanksgiving, were like hot cakes well buttered.
—This evening, Providence permitting, W. H. S. class '01 will hold their second annual reunion in Old Fellows Hall. A nice programme has been arranged for it.

—Clarence Gage, son of Assessor A. E. Gage, who is in Uncle Sam's employ at Panama, a bright young man, sends frequent interesting information from the Canal zone.
—Mrs. Minnie Nichols came down from her home at North Ware, N. H., last Saturday to spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Simonds of Church avenue.

—In the observance of Christmas there is but small variation from year to year. Such was the case in this city—about the same story—eating, drinking, and S. S. concerts.
—The most elaborate and beautiful church decorations seen in this city during the late Yuletide were those of St. Charles, the altar of which excited the admiration of everyone who saw it.

—The next lecture in the Bardeen Course is to be delivered next Monday evening by Senator J. P. Dilliver, whose theme will be "A Poor Boy's Country." He is said to be one of the best in the lecture field.
—It was cheering to see our city churches so beautifully decorated in green and red for the Christmas services that were held in them on Sunday and Tuesday. They never presented a better holiday appearance.

—North Woburn is having a boom in the patent leather manufacturing business. It is a busy section of our city, and is bound to grow in population and wealth. The patent leather industry is thriving in other parts of the city.
—Mr. Wilford Gray, Clerk of the City Council Committee, is, so reports have it, a candidate for the office of City Tax Collector to succeed Judge Maguire, whose term expires on Feb. 1, 1907, and who will absolutely decline a reelection.

—About 6 inches of snow fell here last Saturday night, which covered up the little remaining ice in the roads, and made quite good slipping along for runners. The snow Sunday was not altogether lovely, but, contrarily, cold and disagreeable.
—Both the Editorial and Business ends of the JOURNAL combine were generously remembered by their good friend, Mr. George H. Gilbert of Sunnyside, Winchester, on Merry Christmas Day, for which our warmest thanks are hereby returned.

—A goodly number of Woburn teachers of out-of-town schools, and College students, came home to spend the holiday vacation with families and friends. And many of them were thankful recipients of beautiful Christmas presents—"Just what they wanted," you know.
—Fred Bonin, John Fitzgerald, Ashlie Sealey, Charles Garvey, and James McLeod furnished fine piano and vocal music at the surprise party given to Leo Sealey the other evening. He was presented with a signed ring by William McLaughlin in behalf of the generous donors.

—Miss Julia M. W. Ober is meeting with good success canvassing for "Thirty Years in Washington," by Mrs. John A. Logan, widow of the late U. S. Senator and distinguished General in the Civil War. It is a good word to say concerning him. It also, stated that he is a brother of Chief Justice Blodgett of Rhode Island.

—The School Board will hold a meeting for organization on the first Monday evening in January, being the 7th day of said month, the date for the inauguration of the new city administration in City Hall, an event in which the public take a keen and honest interest and everybody attends.

—Feed the birds. Throw your crumbs from the table, with liberal additions, to them, for when the ground is covered with snow, and icy winds come down from the North, it is hard for them to get enough to eat, and they go to bed nights hungry. So, friends, be kind and merciful to the birds this cold winter weather.

—The notice of the Ladies' Prayer Meeting of First church was omitted from the last Calendar, but it will be held Friday afternoon, Dec. 28, at 4:30, in the church parlor.—M. P. NORRIS, Chairman of Com.

—Promptly on Wednesday morning, as has been her custom for a decade, or more, Mrs. Mary Jennings, proprietor of the Main street variety store, brought her Christmas offering to the JOURNAL, which was gratefully received, and genuine thanks returned for it. May the good lady live long and be happy.

—Police Officer Philip A. McKenna declared to a friend last Sunday evening that he had known the thermometers in Woburn, on one occasion, to mark 32 degrees below zero, and he is reported to be a man of truth and veracity. That remarkably low temperature happened several years ago, he said, but was a fact.

—One of the most pleasing and suggestive objects on the holiday landscape was Mr. E. C. Coleman's ancient yellow sleigh, with whip and bells equally hoary, and the owner handling the reins. To one whose age rubs close up to the century mark, and whose memory takes to the things of his youth, that old sleigh must have had a familiar look.

—Lamprey, Woburn Agent for the American Express Co., had his hands full of business during Christmas week. The Company never before did such a big holiday carrying before; but Lamprey and his faithful helpers were equal to the emergency; and although they worked days, nights, Sunday, and on the great festival day itself, not a murmur or cross word escaped their lips.

—L. E. Hanson & Co. were the first to report to the JOURNAL on holiday trade. They were perfectly satisfied with the amount of their Christmas business. They sold more goods than in any former Christmas season, and thank the public for it. They had the best display window in the city; they had more goods, in greater variety, than ever before; they went right in for big sales, and baffled them.

—Court Aberjona have elected the following officers for this year: Michael Shea, C. R.; Harvey Ames, S. C. R.; Joseph Brogan, Treas.; John W. Foley, Fin. Sec.; M. Anderson, Rec. Sec.; Joseph Kaplan, Lecturer; John McShane, Patrick McCauley, and A. Matthews, Trustees; Frank Cardinal, S. W.; Fred Fountain, J. W. Jeffrey, Doucette, S. B.; Alex. Dulong, J. B. and Dr. V. C. Stewart, Court Physicians.

—Phil M. Brown, son of Mr. W. M. Brown of this city, is making progress upward in the U. S. diplomatic service. He has lately been promoted to the office of Secretary of Legation and Consul General at Romania and Serbia. He goes there from Guatemala, where he has been Secretary of Legation for several years. An Ambassadorial post awaits him, probably not far away in the future.

—A Christmas present that pleased the JOURNAL, largely was one received from Mr. Herbert A. Faulkner, Passenger Agent of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Company and Old Colony Street Railway Co. It was useful as well as ornamental, generous in proportions—"just what we wanted"—and our sincere thanks are extended to Mr. Faulkner for his thoughtfulness and kindness to the Poor Country Editor.

—Careful enquiry revealed the gratifying information that trade in Christmas goods last week and this has never been equalled by sales in any former year. It was great! Tradesmen and shopkeepers were more than satisfied—they were tickled. Every store and shop was crowded; every dealer got a big thank at the Christmas purse and pocketbook. The verdict was unanimous: "Who says now that everybody goes to Boston for their holiday presents?"

—We fail to fail to mind an incident which afforded us more genuine delight than the receipt of "Christmas Greetings" from Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Stoughton of San Diego, California last Monday. It was pleasant to be remembered by old friends and neighbors in the Prairie State, and to conjure up memories of the Christmases spent with them there in the long ago. A long life and a merry one to Col. and Mrs. Stoughton is our sincere reply to their kind greeting.

—Angy Crovo, the popular fruiterer, sold a whole forest of Christmas trees last week and this. They were spruce, pine and balsam right from the forests of Maine, and real beauties, at that. We saw one rich Montvale avenue lady order six of the largest and handsomest in the lot, and how many more she bought for the Christmas decoration of her beautiful home is more than we know. Besides evergreens Crovo sold more fruit, nuts and confectionery than on any former Yuletide, showing that he is not only the leader in the business, but that his trade is growing yearly.

—We wish to place on record a verdict deliberately and understandingly arrived at by us the other day to the effect that Hanson & Co.'s display of holiday goods was the finest and richest ever seen in Woburn. In all manner of gold and silver creations; in diamonds and pearls; in fashion and finish and beauty, their stock excelled any present or former exhibition in this city. The rings, bracelets, necklaces, brooches, chains, many of them by hand, with costly stones, were strongly tempting to those who carried well filled purses, and we are informed that Hanson & Co. had a great anti-Christmas trade.

—Patiently, promptly, pleasantly Postmaster Weyer, his efficient clerks and carriers, handled, to the satisfaction of everybody, the largest in and out Christmas mail this season that has ever passed through the Woburn post-office. The rush set in ahead of the usual time and increased in volume and velocity until the last gun was fired. Master and clerks never worked harder at the Christmas business than this year, and never did Uncle Sam's servants discharge their duties with greater alacrity or in a pleasanter manner.

—No people get less thanks for their good work than they. The fact is, Woburn has a model post-office, and a model force of people to carry it on.

—The annual "January Thaw" set in yesterday.

—Copeland & Bowser had the Christmas trade of their lives.
—The public schools will resume post-holiday work next Wednesday, Dec. 2.

—Mr. Nathaniel Simonds, the High school janitor, is ill at his home on Church avenue.
—We thank Messrs. S. B. Goddard & Son, Insurance, for a capital calendar for 1907.

—The Danish Brotherhood celebrated Christmas in Mechanic's Hall with a supper, dance and good time.
—The present City Council will hold their final meeting at 2 p. m. on Monday, Jan. 7, 1907, Inauguration Day.

—Rev. Dr. Williams and wife ate their Christmas dinner under their own vine and figtree for the first time last Tuesday.

—The Trinity parish Building Committee reported last night all work completed, paid for, and parish free from debt.

—A young peoples party was given by Messrs. Ruth and Dora Richardson on Christmas eve at the home of their parents on Mishawam Road. It was a large and pleasant one.

—Fred J. Rice, of the Board of Assessors, was presented with a handsome gold watch by the Celtic Association last Monday for his good work in pressing "Eileen Oge."

—Fred App guessed that the Hammond prize turkeys weighed 18 pounds and 12 ounces, and that was the figure it kicked the beam at. Fred walked off with his prize promptly.

—Ross M. Howes was crushed to death between two railroad cars on the tracks near the Chemical Works, of which he was an employee, last Wednesday afternoon. He was 22 years old, and left a wife and child.

—The guests at the Methodist chicken banquet Jan. 2, will have a rare treat in listening to the post-prandial exercises. There will be addresses by Rev. C. F. Rice, D. D., of Boston, Hon. L. E. Hitchcock, Judge of the Superior Court of Mass., and solos by Misses Hitchcock and Rollins.

—Woburn is to be honored with a tablet, as one of the oldest towns in Massachusetts, in the monument to be erected at Provincetown to commemorate the first landing of the Pilgrims on this continent. Our City Council have made an appropriation to pay for the tablet at the request of the Cape Cod Pilgrim Memorial Association.

—The meeting arranged by the Y. M. C. A. for next Sunday afternoon in City Hall, promises to be as full of interest as those that have preceded it, as the program arranged is one full of interest, with Rev. A. B. Shields, Rector of the Church of the Redeemer, So. Boston, as speaker for the afternoon, and the Alpine Male Quartette will sing several selections. As these meetings draw to a close the increasing interest should fill the hall on the remaining Sunday afternoons.

—Next Tuesday will witness the advent of the New Year—1907. January 1 is not a legal holiday in Massachusetts, as in some other States, but is made considerable account of by way of parties and feasting, and, also, by the exchange of presents. It is, likewise, made the date for forming new resolutions, particularly in respect to drinking and other evil practices, swearing, lying, and staying out late at night. They are generally broken in a few days. For making presents New Year's Day is almost equal to Christmas; some prefer it for that purpose. Which reminds us to remark that the dealers in Christmas gift goods in this city did not clean their shelves and counters of them during the Yuletide, but kept them ready for the next Tuesday's holiday—all of them as handsome, nice and timely as anyone could wish. Call at the stores and see for yourselves.

—At their regular meeting last week the Woman's Club were agreeably entertained with a graphic description of Mexican scenes and people given by Mrs. H. Josephine Hayward of this city, elaborated from notes taken on a visit to that sister Republic of ours with her husband early in the present year. She received a flattering reception from the large number of ladies present who assembled anticipating an intellectual treat and had their expectations more than realized. As a leading member and ex-President of the Club, and a woman of culture and refinement, Mrs. Hayward has an enviable hold on the good graces of the organization, composed, as it is, of educated women who aspire to mental progress and improvement, and her work to advance its interests and, incidentally, those of the community, is appreciated. She is an entertaining lecturer, and calls for her appearance on club and society platforms are numerous and creditable to her reputation. "Mexico," like her husband, early in the present year, country in many respects new and strange to Northern audiences, is an educator, as well as entertaining; and the graceful manner and choice language in which it was presented delighted everybody present, as the same graces of oratory and style have done before cultivated assemblies in other communities.

—Sale of Bank.
Messrs. J. W. & E. F. Johnson have bought a controlling interest in the stock of the Woburn National Bank. The present Directors were desirous that Mr. J. W. Johnson should remain President of the Bank and he agreed to do so provided sufficient stock was sold to him so that the future policy of the Bank would be under his direction. Accordingly, several of the larger stockholders have disposed of their stock to him and to his brother.

—It was deep desire to have the present Board of Directors remain, but several of them had made plans for the next year which would render it inconvenient to give attention to the business of the Bank, and there will be some changes in the Board at the next Annual Meeting.

THE PARK.

"Katie Belov" whose appearance as "Brigadier Gerard" at the Park Theatre next week is attracting the attention of the thousands of admirers of that peculiarly gifted actor has in this most faithful creation of the fertile imagination of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle a role that he regards as one of the most congenial in which he has ever made love and fought his way out of apparently insurmountable difficulties. One can always anticipate a most satisfactory performance by this dramatic artist of the stage as it would be impossible for him to do anything otherwise than well. The role of Brigadier Gerard is as the title implies a dramatization of the hero of Mr. Doyle's most charming sketches the brave, humorous soldier of the Great War. By reason of imperative emergency the actors of the Park will stay at the Park will be limited to one week Matinee Wednesday and Saturday.

CASTLE SQUARE.

The ever popular drama of Revolutionary days, "John Merivale" will be given at the Castle Square Theatre next week. It is a dramatization of Paul Leicester Ford's novel of the same name, and its four acts present a series of scenes that are both interesting and stirring. American patriotism and the interests of her country. The action of the play takes place in New Jersey and at Yorktown and the famous crossing of the Delaware by Washington, the battle of Brandywine, the great American victory at Yorktown form an important part of the play. The cast will include Mr. Hansel, Miss Lawton and the entire Castle Square Stock Company. A week from next Monday night, "Twelfth Night" at the Castle Square and on the 15th of January, "The Merry Wives of Windsor" will be given.

A Western Wonder.

There's a Hill at Bowie, Tex., that's twice as big as last year. This wonder is a hill, which from a weight of 30 pounds has grown to over 180. He says: "I suffered with a terrible cough, and doctors gave me up to die of Consumption. I was reduced to 90 pounds when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Now, after taking 12 bottles, I feel like a new man, and my cough is completely cured." Only one Cough and Cold cure. Guaranteed by McLaughlin & Denison, Druggists. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

A Happy Christmas Party.

The Highland Club, with some invited guests, which were entertained at the house of Mr. McKeown on South street on Christmas evening, made a joyful party of congenial spirits. Music, both vocal and instrumental, and humorous readings from a well known artist, made the house ring with laughter and delight. Later in the evening the company was entertained at a dinner which was decorated with holly and Chinese lanterns and a large tree beautifully laden with gifts. Just as the dinner added more fun to the happy group. After disposing of these things to each guest, the dining room was made where the desires of the epicure could be met. At a later hour, after expressions of thanks to the hostess and her daughter for the hospitality and pleasure of the evening, and many wishes for a Happy New Year, the Christmas of 1906 ended in the Highlands.—P.

Literary Notices.

THE NATIONAL.

The NATIONAL for January is a snappy number. Affairs at Washington, by its editor, Jos. Mitchell Chapple, is exceptionally strong in character; and several additional pages are added to this department, giving to the reader an insight into the affairs of the National Capital such as can be obtained from no other publication. Cuba's Malady is the title of one of the most timely articles of the month, and is written by John Vavasseur Noel, who has been in Cuba for some time, and has made a study of the conditions that led up to the intervention by the United States. Kate Restieux contributes an interesting article upon John Greenleaf Warren Stoddard furnishes one of the best stories he has written for many months, under the title of Caprice. The Bright Side of Packington, by Mary Humphrey, gives the reader an intelligent idea of conditions, and is a widely different from the sensational material, that all good people, except those who are looking for yellow literature, will appreciate the article. The Home Department is, as usual, full of those helpful hints that we all want to know. The editor adds to the Happy Habit articles a set of Resolutions, which are good for all living beings. The number is filled with the very best of fiction, among which might be especially noted, the story Reversing an Engineer, by C. C. Johnson; The Poor Man's Cow, by Miriam Sheffy; A Comedy in the Air, by Charles McEwaine; His Client, by F. Binney de Forest; as well as other fascinating fiction. The NATIONAL's recent cover designs are excellent, this month by one of Manning's Typical American Girls, which is the best thing that he has yet done.

Long Tennessee Fight.

For twenty years W. L. Rawls, of Bolis, Tenn., fought nasal catarrh. He was swollen and sneezing incessantly, my nose was fearful, till I began applying Bucklen's Arnica Salve to the sore surface; this caused the soreness and swelling to disappear, never to return. Best salve in existence. 25c at McLaughlin & Denison's, druggists.

WINCHESTER.

The winter term of the public schools will begin on Jan. 2, at the close of the holiday vacation.

The Selectmen are going for delinquent polltax payers with picked sticks. Men ought to be willing to pay $2 for the privilege of voting.

There were entertaining Christmas services in all the churches, Sunday School concerts, and fat Christmas dinners all over the lot.

The late special Town Meeting was adjourned to Feb. 11, when it is expected, the grade crossing committee will be ready to make a full and final report.

Basketball is in high favor here. Between it and tennis it is nip and tuck, as was the case of the dog and cat when the dog was a little ahead. But at this date it looks as though tennis might come out ahead next spring.

As he has done for many years past Thomas W. Lawson generously remembered his Winchester neighbors in the shape of many well filled boxes of Christmas presents again this year. (He is a liberal giver, and may his shadow never grow less.)

A Miraculous Cure.

The following statement by H. M. Adams and wife, Henrietta, Pa., will interest parents and others. "A miraculous cure has taken place in our home. Our child had eczema 7 years and was pronounced incurable, when we read about Electric Bitters, and concluded to try it. Before the second bottle was all taken we noticed a change for the better, and after taking 7 bottles he was completely cured." It's the up-to-date blood medicine and body building tonic. CUTTLEFISH FARMS.

Where the Queen Creatures are Cultivated to Be Milked.

Does any one know that cuttlefish are cultivated on farms to be milked? These cuttlefish farms are located on the coasts of Great Britain, and the cuttlefish are kept in tanks or ponds to be milked of their ink. The pond or tank is connected with the sea by a pipe, and a thousand or more cuttlefish are kept in a single one.

They form a most curious sight as they move about, trailing their long arms and staring out of their bulging eyes. They are guarded by screens which prevent them from being scared, for if they are suddenly frightened they will squirt their milk into the water, and it would therefore be lost. This fluid or milk is very valuable, and a cuttle will yield about $3 worth a year. It is secreted in a bag which can be opened and closed at will, the cuttle ejecting the fluid to darken the water so that it may escape unseen when attacked.

The best cuttlefish are procured in China, where for some reason or other they produce the best quality of milk. When the farmer considers it opportune to milk the cuttlefish he proceeds by opening the sluices of the pond and gently agitating the water. The cuttlefish then swim around the pond, and as soon as one passes by the sluice is closed. The cuttle passes down a small channel into a basin or metal receptacle, and as soon as it is securely there the water is drained off. It is then frightened and at once squirts the fluid from the bag. When it is exhausted it is lifted out, the milk is collected and the basin prepared for another.

MODERN CIVILIZATION.

Its Complexity, Hurry and Worry Shortening Our Lives.

Not long ago while traveling I endeavored to stop at a village on the river Rhine, where I found an astonishing number of old people. There were a dozen over a hundred years of age and many from eighty years old up to the century mark, yet straight and vigorous. One woman nearly a hundred years old was earning her living by picking bones. Her grandchildren were middle aged. It was quite wonderful. But there was no mystery about it. It was merely the effect of a simple life spent largely in the fields, with plain diet, consisting of a few vegetables and fruits, little meat, and native beer and wine for beverages.

Nothing can be more obvious than that the very complexity of our modern civilization is shortening our lives. But of all the evils that afflict us the worst and most destructive are hurry and worry. Hurry drives the body machine beyond its capacity, while worry racks it inwardly. Of the two worry is probably the worse. This might be called the age of worry. Because of the intense nervous strain to which we are subjected we do vastly more worrying than did our forebears. The average man of today is continually surrounded and pursued by plan troubles, which, though few of them ever materialize into realities, haunt him continually, ruining his peace of mind and injuring his health.—Reader Magazine.

Getting Married.

I don't know myself what getting married feels like, but it cannot be much more exciting than watching other people getting married. Indeed, I always get something like palpitation of the heart just before the priest utters the final fatal words, "I declare you man and wife." Half a second after you were still free. Half a second after you were bound for the term of your natural life. Half a second before you had only to dash the book from the priest's hands and put your hands over his mouth, and though thus giddily swinging on the brink of the precipice, you are saved. Half a second after—

All the king's horses and all the king's men Cannot make you a bachelor again.

It is the knife edge moment betwixt time and eternity.—From Le Gallienne's "His Quest of the Golden Girl."

The Name "Fife."

The origin of the name Fife is not known. One history tries to show that it comes from the Celtic word veach, a Pict, and means that the district was inhabited by Picts, but that is obviously absurd, as Fife was not specially the home of any of the Pictish nations. The tradition that finds greatest favor is related by a monk, who states that the first known possessor of the district which has since grown into the kingdom of Fife was one Pictus Duffus, a famous chieftain whose date is lost in the mists of antiquity.

Many a Slip For the Farmer.

"Raising wheat is no easy task," remarked a farmer. "One year I had 500 acres of as beautiful wheat as ever lay out of doors. It stood breast high, and it seemed good for forty bushels to the acre. That meant to me a profit of $7,000. I had the teams and harvest hands engaged and expected to begin cutting on Monday. On Friday afternoon there came out of the northwest a greenish gray cloud. Following it a heavy rain fell. The ten minutes the wheat was drenched to six inches from the ground. We cut a little of it for hay. The remainder rotted on the ground. The mortgage on the farm was foreclosed, and I hired by the day to support my family. Do you wonder that the wheat farmer is not boastful of his crop until he has it in the granary?"—Outlook.

The Oldest Tunnel.

The oldest known tunnel in the world is that of Siloah, near Jerusalem. It was used as an aqueduct. The famous inscription, discovered some years ago, celebrated the first meeting of the diggers from both sides. Newspapers of the present day have reported that it did not appear in those days, and so the event cannot be exactly dated, but it most probably took place under King Hezekiah, about 700 B. C., and is an interesting testimony to the high state of civilization among the Jews at a time when Europe was inhabited by savages.—American Israelite.

Wasted Advice.

A beauty adviser says, "For tender eyes make an infusion of"—Oh, beauty! Every girl knows how to make tender eyes without advice from any specialists.—Minneapolis Tribune.

The Signal.

Tommy—Does your man hit your foot under the table when you've had enough? Tommy—No; that's when I haven't had enough. When I have he sends for the doctor.—Harper's Bazar.

We know accurately when we know little. With knowledge doubt increases.—Goethe.

FIRE INSURANCE.

What Amount May Not Be Paid Even When Loss Is Complete.

In a fire insurance policy the sum insured merely marks the maximum liability accepted by the insurance company and determines the premium to be paid. It is not in any way admitted by the insurance office as a measure of the value of the property insured.

If I have a life policy for $5,000, says a writer in the Nineteenth Century, my heirs can, on proof of my death and their title, receive at least $5,000, possibly more if there are bonuses. If I have a ship and I insure her with marine insurance companies for $5,000, I can recover the full $5,000 at once should my ship be totally lost. But if I insure my house against fire for $5,000 I cannot recover $5,000 unless I can prove the house to be worth fully that sum. All that I am entitled to demand is the actual value of my house immediately before it was burned, and I must give every assistance to the insurance company in order that its actual value may be justly determined.

By statute the insurance company has the power to re-insure that house, as far as the sum insured will go, instead of paying me anything. In practice, compensation is usually agreed upon and paid in cash without recourse on either side to the right of reinstatement, but in no case am I entitled to more than the actual value of my house as it existed just before the fire.

PATENTS ON INVENTIONS.

Must Be in the Names of the Actual Inventors.

The law provides for the granting of patents only to the actual inventor of the patented invention, and a patent granted in the name of any one else is invalid. For this reason it is essential that the application for patent be made in the name of the one whom the law regards as the inventor. In some factories it is the custom to patent every new device in the name of the president of the company. This frequently happens because the company has been built up on inventions made by the president or other officer, and as a matter of pride the president wishes to see all patents issued in his name.

This is a dangerous thing to do in the case of inventions which are conceived by the employee independently of the officer, such inventions wholly worked out by employee without suggestion or assistance from the officer, for if in a suit brought under such patent it were shown that while the patent was granted in the name of the officer, such invention was actually made by an employee the patent would be declared invalid, and usually a suit would not have reached such a stage until it was too late to go back and patent the invention in the name of the real inventor.—Edwin J. Preindle in Engineering Magazine.

The Huguenots.

Here are two essays on the Huguenots by Chicago public school pupils: "The Huguenots are people in France that are followers of Victor Hugo. Their leader is a man named Jean Valjean that was a thief, but got converted and turned out well. The Huguenots are very good people. A lady named Evangeline wrote a long poem about them, but it don't do any good." "The Huguenots is the name of a big thing like a steam roller that the mogul used in India to run over people. It squashed them to death and was very terrible. It had eyes painted on when it was running. They are no huguenots any more."

John Bright and Lord Manners.

In one of his speeches in the house of commons John Bright quoted in a spirit of irony and ridicule the well-known lines written by Lord John Manners in his callow youth:

Let wealth and commerce, laws and learning die, But leave us still our old nobility.

Lord John, who was present, immediately got up and pulverized the great tribune by retorting, "I would rather be the foolish young man who wrote those lines than the malignant old man who quoted them."

Better No Food Than No Opera.

The creole would rather do without a few meals than miss a good opera with a fine cast, nor does this admirer of money apply to the money classes. Many a charming little creole lady who might point to a Marigny on her escutcheon would not hesitate if hard pressed to do her own housework in order to be able to look out at night in her proper place, radiant and exquisite, in a loge grille at the opera. It matters little in New Orleans to what unfortunate straits adversity may have driven a lady, even though she may do typewriting for people whom she meets socially. There are enough noble minded people of the ancient regime who will help her to forget the pinch of poverty and see that she receives the greatest consideration. This lauded creole is one of the most marked and endearing traits of the southern character, lending to the south an atmosphere free from our parasitical funkiness over mere money or its insignia.—C. H. White in Harper's Magazine.

A Good Critic.

Sir Henry Irving, the English actor, once wanted a white horse to use in one of his scenes, but no white horse that was suitable could be got. At last a stage hand advised him to apply to a certain distinguished actor manager, who, he said, had such a horse. Sir Henry visited the owner, inspected the horse, and the bargain was concluded. He trusted the animal was not fractious.

"Not at all, Sir Henry, I assure you; an excellent horse in every way. Why, I rode him night after night, and all I had to complain of was that he would occasionally yawn when I was on the stage."

"Indeed," said Sir Henry, "A bit of a critic, then, evidently."

The Wind Month.

November was called by the ancient Saxons the wint monath, or wind month, on account of the gales then prevalent. It was also named the blot monath, or blood month, from the ancient practice of then slaughtering cattle for the winter provisions. It is said that the Roman senators wished to name the month after Tiberius, as Julius Caesar and Augustus, but the emperor, like Cato, felt that it was useless to have too much blattery and refused, remarking dryly, "What will you do, conscript fathers, if you have thirteen Caesars?"

A Shooting Gallery Secret.

"Do you see this glass ball?" said the shooting gallery man. It was a ball of hollow glass, an airy glass soap bubble, that had sewing all season at the end of a thread in the foreground of the clay pipes, bells and what not that had made up the gallery's targets. "This glass ball," the man went on, "is my great money maker. All season long people tried to hit this ball—it was bigger and nearer than any other target—and everybody failed. Thousands of bullets were fired at the ball, thousands of nickels were spent on it, yet here it is, still untouched, my best breadwinner. All wise shooting gallery men have a glass ball like this. It makes such a tempting target, yet it is never hit. It is never hit because the air that precedes a gun charge is sufficient to blow the ball aside, out of the way. You might fire a hundred shots at it, but, like a living thing, like a timid soldier, for instance, it would dodge each shot."

Mary Anderson's Voice.

Miss Anderson's voice was always her predominant charm. Certain tones in it—so thrilling, so full of wild passion and inexpressible melancholy—went straight to the heart and brought tears into the eyes. The voice is the exponent of the soul. You can paint your face, you can pad your person, you can wear a wig, you can walk in shoes that augment your height, you can in various ways change your body, but your voice will sooner or later reveal you as you are. Just as the style of the writer discloses his character, so the quality of the voice discloses the actor's nature. It seems unlikely that Miss Anderson's melting, tragic tones were uttered in any of her girlish impromptus, but the copious, lovely voice was there, and it gained her first victory.—William Winter in Saturday Evening Post.

Running as Exercise.

The fact that a person is capable of doing the best running and speed walking before the thirtieth year need not lead those who have passed the third decade to think that they are on the down grade of life, says an authority. These exercises call for elasticity of the arteries, and that lessens soon after the thirtieth year, but powers of endurance increase in the well preserved man or woman up to fifty or fifty-five or even later. Soldiers of fifty are like leather and can perform feats of endurance that would kill the stripling, and the same is true of women.

Girl Cannot Live.

Miss Mabel McKenna, the young woman who sought to end her life by inhaling illuminating gas at her lodging house, 114 Franklin street, Lynn, Saturday noon, remained in a critical condition at the hospital today, and the physicians have no hope for her recovery. She returned to consciousness at intervals.

ELECTRICITY.

The most convenient, efficient, and safest illuminant it is possible to obtain is the electric light. The rates now are lower than they used to be, and the electric light is thoroughly economical in use unless you waste it. It is so readily controlled that waste is easily avoided.

Have you learned to be light-wise?

What the cost ought to be in a home like yours, our Sales Agent will tell you quickly if you will write him, or call, or telephone "Oxford 1150, Collect."
